

POW Release Set

Saturday Probable

... Says ICCS Man

Saigon (UPI) — The first of more than 500 American prisoners of the Vietnam war will be released around Saturday, the chairman of the international cease-fire team said Tuesday.

Michel Gauvin, Canadian representative on the four-nation International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS), said he did not know the exact details of the release, "but I understand the American prisoners will probably be released around the 10th of February — some of them, not all, from Hanoi."

"I understand there should be an exchange of prisoners, or release of prisoners, shortly after (Saturday) in the South," Gauvin said. "I think it should take place after the Americans (are released)."

VC Present Details

Sources within the four-party Joint Military Commission said Viet Cong representatives presented details of the POW release to U.S. officials Tuesday. At least some of the U.S. servicemen to be freed this weekend will be released at the Communist-held Quan Loi airfield, 60 miles north of Saigon.

The sources said South Vietnamese C130 Hercules aircraft will begin ferrying home North Vietnamese prisoners of war Feb. 12.

Fighting in South Vietnam went on Tuesday without let-up. The first attempt by the ICCS to police the Vietnam peace was halted by an artillery battle near Quang Tri City in northern South Vietnam.

Correspondent Donald A. Davis said 12 cease-fire supervisors — three each from Canada, Hungary, Indonesia and Poland, tried to drive from Hue on the coast to Quang Tri City 32 miles north.

Duel Halts ICCS Team

Six miles south of Quang Tri, the ICCS team was halted by an artillery duel between North and South Vietnamese gunners, Davis said.

South Vietnamese marine and paratroop officers advised the ICCS team riding in a four-car, two-jeep convoy that it would be unsafe to continue north. Shells falling close to Highway 1 into Quang Tri were plainly visible, and the sounds of battle could be heard clearly.

"It sounds like incoming (nearby artillery fire) to me," said Canadian delegation leader Col. William McLeod. "Our orders are not to endanger the team."

McLeod ordered the convoy turned around and the team headed back to Hue regional headquarters.

120 Violations Alleged

The Saigon high command Tuesday reported 120 Communist violations of the armistice in the 24-hours ending at dawn Tuesday, 31 more than reported during the previous 24 hours.

No figures are released on South Vietnamese offensive operations, although the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese have charged that Saigon forces have violated the cease-fire numerous times.

Official figures listed 233 Communist soldiers and 61 government troops killed as a result of battlefield action on the eighth day of the cease-fire, spokesmen said.

The U.S. Command reported American withdrawal during the past five days was at the rate of 400 men a day. As of Sunday, the Command said, there were 19,800 Americans remaining in South Vietnam.

Just as the Vietnamese Communists are apparently stringing out the release of American prisoners, so has the United States decided to string out its troop withdrawal, U.S. military sources said.

"We don't want to leave too fast, or we'll all be gone before we get all our prisoners back," said one officer.

It Would Meet Timetable

If the U.S. POWs are freed this weekend, it will conform to the timetable established by the Paris peace agreement. Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger said two weeks ago that the first of four batches of Americans would be released by the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese within 15 days after the treaty was signed Jan. 27.

Kissinger is scheduled to arrive in Hanoi Saturday for a four-day visit to discuss post-war American aid to North Vietnam.

County Board Sponsors Pre-Trial Release Plan

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

One of two proposals that would enable persons to be released from jail before they appear in court entered formal channels Tuesday and action on the other is expected soon.

The Lancaster County Commissioners Tuesday agreed to be the sponsoring unit of local government to kick off efforts to obtain federal funding through the State Crime Commission for a pre-trial release program without bond.

The proposal was brought before the commissioners by Paul Galtier, chairman of the Lincoln Bar Association committee that first proposed the two new procedures.

Use Law Students
According to Galtier, under the first proposal a group of law students would be hired to investigate the backgrounds of suspects jailed but not yet arraigned.

On the basis of interviews and subsequent checks on suspect's statements, the law students might phone a judge and recommend that the person be released without bond. The judge would make the final decision.

Action on the other proposal will also take place soon, according to Galtier.

He said Lincoln City Attorney Dick Wood is preparing an ordinance for introduction to the city council which would enable persons arrested for violations of city ordinance to be released on bond when court is not in session.

Would Name Police

The ordinance would name the Lincoln Police Department to administer the procedure as set up by the municipal judges.

Under present policy, police decide who they will release to an attorney. Persons arrested on warrant or for a felony are never released until arraignment.

The two proposals would supplement the practice of releasing suspects to an attorney, not replace it, according to Galtier.

Supporters of the new procedures argue that present practices allow police to decide who they will or will not release to an attorney and that this power is applied inconsistently, or results in inconsistency if a person cannot obtain a lawyer.

According to supporters this means, in effect, that police now can decide to sentence a person to a night, a weekend or a holiday in jail.

Police Chief Joe Carroll says he will "certainly recommend against" the new pre-trial bond procedure, but doesn't have any "particular objection" to the program involving law students as long as they are the "right caliber."

Court Function

"Bond is a court function and I don't think we should be involved in it," Carroll said.

Carroll added that if the bond procedure is established he would like to have an officer of the court handle it, rather than a police officer.

Won't Cure Anything

Lancaster County Public Defender Clement Gaughan, while observing wryly that as a defense attorney he would like to see all suspects get out of jail, said the proposals "won't cure anything."

"All it will amount to is that the bondsman will make the money instead of the lawyer," Gaughan said of the proposed bond procedure.

Contradicting other arguments, Gaughan said "There's nobody in jail that can't find a lawyer. Police will give them a phone book. Other inmates will tell them who to call."

Attorney Can Appear

In addition, Gaughan said, if a person released to an attorney before arraignment does not appear in court, the attorney, unlike a bondsman, can appear in court, plead his client guilty and pay the fine (if that is the sentence) which clears the municipal court docket.

Gaughan said that the proposed pre-trial release program without bond is only a "fine theory."

Despite Objections

Despite his objections to the proposals, Gaughan said that some provision should be made for those persons who are arrested and have to spend two or three days in jail before arraignment.

"The police like to keep them in jail as long as they can because they're more likely to get a guilty plea," Gaughan said.

Whatever the fate of the two proposals, Galtier believes some "progress" has already been made.

Police are now releasing persons arrested for drug possession to an attorney or parents in the hope, according to Carroll, that his will take a "little of the heat off."

Deaf Persons Can Talk On Special Telephones

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

Talking on the telephone with a deaf person is no longer an impossibility as 13 Lincoln families will know.

In each of these 13 homes where at least one deaf adult resides there is a phone-teletypewriter installed, making house-to-house as well as long-distance conversations an everyday reality.

The first teletypewriters arrived in Lincoln about five years ago through the help of an association called Ak-Sar-Ben Telecommunicators for the Deaf.

The Ak-Sar-Ben group works with the Alexander Graham Bell Association — an international organization for the deaf — to obtain discarded teletypes from companies who are replacing their equipment.

Repair, renovation and installation of the used teletypes are done by the Ak-Sar-Ben group for a cost of $40-$45.

In addition to a regular telephone, which requires some minor adjustments, an acoustical coupler, approximately $160 in cost, must be purchased to complete the system.

The coupler makes it possible to hook regular telephones to the teletype apparatus for transmitting messages through a sound system rather than through the telephone wiring.

Once the unit is installed, the only cost to the user is a monthly charge for telephone service, plus any long distance calls he has made.

For people who can neither hear or talk, the teletype system makes it possible to communicate by typing messages which are transmitted through sound impulses sent over the telephone. The teletype at the receiving end sent over the telephone. The teletype at the receiving end converts the sound impulses into a typed message.

Since a deaf person cannot hear a telephone ringing, each unit is equipped with a signal light which blinks on and off, indicating that someone is trying to call in. If a caller is not hooked up to a teletype, he will be surprised by the high-pitched beeps that reach his ear, but they will have no meaning for him. Also, he has no way of communicating his message to the non-hearing party on the other end of the line.

According to Marvin Rhodes, state president of Nebraskans Interested in the Deaf (NID), both the limited number of used teletypes available and the somewhat prohibitive cost of the acoustic couplers have kept the number of home teletypes in Lincoln at a minimum.

Rhodes feels that the teletype gets rid of all the language barriers between a deaf and a hearing person, making for a "really comfortable visit." It's like writing a letter to someone and getting an instant response, he explained.

Although a hearing person, Rhodes has a 17-year-old son who became deaf after a bout with meningitis at the age of five. Rhodes has since assumed an active role in Lincoln's deaf community and was a key member of a committee which was instrumental in getting two intercom teletypes installed at the Nebraska School for the Deaf.

Exon Accused Of Distorting Ed Budget Recommendations

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Department of Education officials Tuesday accused the Exon administration of distorting its budget recommendations with an unrealistic reliance on federal funds.

Gov. J. James Exon's recommendations for the department represents "some pencil pushing" in regard to anticipated federal funding, State Education Commissioner Cecil Stanley told the Legislature's Appropriations Committee.

Frank Landis of Lincoln, a member of the State Board of Education, said the governor's budget relies on an increase in federal funding whereas "the exact opposite will occur."

Landis said the department's own request is "conservative and realistic" and, except for a proposed increase in state aid to public schools, had the support of such "fiscal conservatives" as Allen Burkhardt, Pat Conney and Lloyd Wright.

All three men were members of the board when the budget was originally developed.

After the 1972 general election, the new board decided to amend the budget to request an increase in state aid from $5 million to $89 million a year.

The 24-hour hearing actually ignored the requested hike in state aid, reflecting the general assumption that the committee will forego a recommendation on state assistance and leave that decision to the full Legislature.

That is the policy the committee followed in 1972. State aid bills are being funneled through the Education Committee for eventual decision on the floor.

With the proposed state aid increase, the department's 1973-74 budget request amounts to $133.4 million. Exon's recommendation is $74.9 million.

Without the state aid hike, the department's budget request is some $79.4 million. "We intend to come on strong in support of our budget," Stanley told the committee.

In addition to the complaints about over reliance on federal funds in the governor's budget, department officials said they object to Exon's proposals to transfer a number of department programs to other agencies.

John Oberg, a budget officer in the Department of Administrative Services, told the committee the governor's budget did not anticipate federal funds in excess of the department's.

(Jon Oberg, a budget officer in the Department of Administrative Services, told the committee the governor's budget did not anticipate federal funds in excess of the department's request.)

Exon's budget would transfer a number of vocational educational programs to the Department of Health, the Military Department, the Department of Labor and the fire marshal's office.

Budget cuts in special education would require the department to serve fewer children or prorate state funding to the schools, the committee was told.

The state would have to forego substantial federal matching funds for vocational rehabilitation programs under the Exon budget, department officials said.

Whereas an estimated 50,000 Nebraska could use such services, the committee was told the level of funding has provided service for only 7,000 or 8,000 people.

The committee deferred action on the budget request for a later time.

Some On Old Age Aid May Lose Ground

Washington (UPI) — Some aged, blind and disabled persons among the 63 million under old age assistance may lose part of their benefits when the federal government takes over the program next year, according to a study released Tuesday.

This will be true in 35 states and the District of Columbia, said the National Senior Citizens Law Center, unless the jurisdictions choose to supplement the minimum federal payments of $130 a month for an individual and $195 for a couple.

In 24 of the states, the current minimum payment is higher than the federal rate to go into effect next Jan. 1, the study said. And it said some recipients stand to lose food stamp bonuses and Medicaid benefits, and to have their rents raised.

The federal government takes over the state-administered welfare programs of old age assistance, now to be called supplemental security income (SSI), under a measure President Nixon signed into law last Oct.

30. The estimated $3.5 billion yearly cost will come from general federal revenues.

The Law Center, a government-supported legal service for senior citizens, said in its report: "There are 36 states (D.C. is counted as one) in which SSI's replacement of current ... benefits, without state supplementation, will mean a reduction in some recipients' income."

The center's report was distributed at a meeting here of the National Council of Senior Citizens, which will lobby state legislatures on behalf of supplements to maintain current aid levels.

The jurisdictions where recipients could lose some of their benefits were listed as Alabama, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Texas, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Washington — The White House announced Tuesday a further effort to achieve a cease-fire in Laos and plans for international conference that will try to solidify the Vietnam cease-fire agreement. In a joint statement with the North Vietnamese, the White House said the post-war conference to guarantee the Vietnam agreement would open in Paris Feb. 26, and that Secretary of State Rogers would head the American delegation. It was also disclosed that Henry A. Kissinger's Asian trip would include a stop in Laos. He is scheduled to leave Wednesday.

Dollars Pour Into Germany

Bonn — The biggest rush of dollars into Germany since May 1971 was met by the determination of Chancellor Willy Brandt's government to defend the mark's present parity, but most European bankers and businessmen are afraid that this is not the end of the story. The new crisis is said to reflect the fractured state of the world economic relations. (More on Page 2.)

Washington — At least one White House official knew of and aided the political intelligence operations led by G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt Jr. as early as February 1972, four months before the Watergate arrests, government sources said (More on Page 12.)

Thousands Of Dollars Await Many POWs

By The New York Times

Washington — Many of the prisoners of war on their release will find several thousand dollars awaiting them in pay, savings and bonuses that accumulated while they were in captivity.

In a limited number of cases, according to the Defense Department, some prisoners will have a "freedom fund" measured in tens of thousands of dollars in military savings accounts.

Most of the savings come from deductions made in the prisoners' pay while in captivity. But in addition, under a 1970 law passed by Congress, each prisoner will be entitled to $5 a day for every day he was held in captivity.

It's Tax-Exempt
Under a 1972 law, the men will not have to pay any federal income tax on military pay received while they were in captivity.

Throughout the Vietnam war, the Defense Department has followed a policy of continuing to pay the salary and allowances of men captured or missing in action.

What was done with the pay depended upon the choice made by each individual before he entered combat.

In some cases, most or all of the pay was sent to the families of the prisoners. But in other instances, particularly unmarried men with no dependents, the pay, at the direction of the individual, was put by the Defense Department in a special savings account.

10% Interest Rate
Partly to encourage savings deductions by servicemen in Vietnam, the Defense Department established an overseas savings system paying 10% in annual interest. About a year ago, the Air Force directed that at least 10% of the pay of Air Force prisoners had to go into the overseas savings accounts.

According to Defense Department records, 79 Air Force officers and men who are either captured or missing in action have accumulated from $50,000 to $100,000 in such savings accounts. Another 247 have between $25,000 and $50,000 credited to their accounts.

The returning prisoners will find out how much money is coming to them when they reach the processing center at Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines. They will then be given an advance payment to meet their immediate expenses.

How much each individual will receive will depend upon how long he has been in captivity and the decision he made on distribution of his pay while imprisoned. Even if all the pay was allotted to families, however, most of the prisoners will receive at least a few thousand dollars in "captivity bonuses" ordered by Congress.

The 1970 law provided that every U.S. citizen, military or civilian, would receive $5 a day for every day held in captivity — $3 a day for forced labor and $2 a day for substandard food. The "captivity bonuses" will be paid by the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission.

Since three-quarters of the prisoners have been held for four years or longer, that means that most of the men will receive at least $7,000 in individual bonuses.

In addition, the men will be paid for the 30-day annual leave they lost while in captivity. Each man will be entitled to 2 1/2 days pay for each month spent in captivity, so that one year in captivity will add up to one month's pay.

A married Air Force major with 12 years' service — representative of the status of most of the prisoners — receives $1,749 a month in pay and allowances.

Nixon Puts Woman At AEC Helm

Washington (AP) — President Nixon Tuesday named Dixy Lee Ray as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

She is the third woman he has named to head an independent agency.

Dr. Ray, a member of the AEC since last August, succeeds James R. Schlesinger who became director of the Central Intelligence Agency last week.

As a member of the commission, Dr. Ray's designation requires no Senate confirmation.

She told reporters she will make an effort to increase public understanding of AEC activities in radiation safety. In the next four months, she said, she will be making speeches to various groups and also will make a series of tapes for use by radio stations to explain better the AEC mission.

Dixy Lee Ray

In an effort to learn more about the AEC, she has visited two-thirds of its facilities around the country.

Fire Guts High School In Paris, Kills Fifteen

Paris (AP) — Fire gutted a four-story high school in northeastern Paris Tuesday night, killing at least 15 persons, a fire department official at the scene reported.

He said the victims "were probably asphyxiated by the smoke before wreckage of all kinds crushed them."

Many of the victims were students whose bodies lay under debris inside building, he said after an initial search.

The fire broke out at about 8 p.m. when the school was normally empty, but students of a municipal music class were using the premises.

About 40 students were evacuated shortly after the blaze started.

About 100 firemen battled the flames more than two hours after the fire began.

"The bodies of the children are in a terrible state, absolutely unidentifiable," said the fire department official who searched the building.

U.S. Motor-Fuel Use Rose 5.5% In 1972

Chicago — U.S. motor-fuel consumption reached 1.07 billion gallons in 1972, a 5.5 per cent increase over 1971. This was 877 gallons for every registered vehicle, excluding motorcycles.

Paris Proposed For Peace Parley

(c) Washington Star-News
Washington — The United States and North Vietnam Tuesday proposed Paris as the site of the 12-nation Indochina peace conference that is to convene Feb. 26.

A simultaneous announcement here and Hanoi said the two governments have agreed to suggest Paris as the meeting place in consultations with the countries involved.

The peace agreement signed in Paris last month provided for the international conference to "guarantee the ending of the war, the maintenance of peace in Vietnam, the respect of the Vietnamese peoples' fundamental national rights and the South Vietnamese people's right to self-determination, and to contribute to and guarantee peace in Indochina."

In addition to the United States, North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam (Viet Cong), those invited to the conference are the Soviet Union, the People's Republic of China, Britain, France, Canada, Poland, Hungary and Indonesia.

The secretary general of the United Nations, Kurt Waldheim, also is being asked to take part.

Kissinger To Meet Lao Officials

Washington (UPI) — White House adviser Henry A. Kissinger will confer in Vietnam Friday with Laotian officials about a cease-fire scheduled to go into effect early next week, it was announced Tuesday.

Informed diplomatic sources said he also will confer in Hanoi or Peking with former Cambodian Prime Minister Norodom Sihanouk.

Administration sources said a cease-fire in Laos is ready to begin Sunday. Diplomatic sources in Vientiane reported the same target date for the end of the Laotian phase of the Indochina war.

The White House Tuesday issued a schedule for Kissinger's previously announced trip to Hanoi and Peking, which indicates steps in Bangkok and Vientiane prior to his scheduled Saturday arrival in North Vietnam.

The White House has declined to respond to questions as to whether Kissinger also would see Sihanouk during his Southeast Asian tour. But the diplomatic sources, who asked not to be identified, said such a meeting would be in keeping with the administration policy of contacting all political elements that might help bring peace and stability to the area.

Sihanouk, who has resided in China since being ousted by Premier Lon Nol in a bloodless coup March 18, 1970, has been visiting in Hanoi recently.

Germany Rescues U.S. Dollar

Bonn (UPI) — Speculators attacked the U.S. dollar with fury Tuesday and knocked it into the protective lap of the German government. Financial sources said Germany bought a record 1.5 billion unwanted dollars by way of rescue.

This emergency support propped the dollar up at a level—but legally acceptable—below exchange rate of 3 1/2 marks for another day.

Backwash from the pandemonium on the Frankfurt exchange caused the dollar to flutter uncertainly on money markets in Britain, Belgium, the Netherlands and France.

The problem was caused when monetary speculators decided to sell their dollars for the German mark. The German currency is "harder" — that is, less prone to downward fluctuation in monetary exchanges — and speculators may have hoped the German government would revalue the mark, making it more valuable in terms of dollars.

In order to prevent the cost of dollars in terms of marks from going too low, the German Central Bank stepped in and bought dollars at a previously agreed to lower limit.

Stennis Has Surgery . . .

Prognosis 'Grave'

Washington (AP) — Sen. John C. Stennis was reported awake, alert and resting comfortably but his prognosis was "grave" following new surgery Tuesday.

The senator was shot twice in a holdup a week ago and was making speedy progress toward recovery before the emergency surgery early Tuesday.

A spokesman at Walter Reed Army Medical Center said Stennis was in the surgical intensive care unit and was receiving intravenous fluids.

The Mississippi Democrat, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, underwent a 45-minute exploratory operation after surgeons at Walter Reed Army Medical Center "became concerned about a change in the condition of his small intestine."

A hospital spokesman said doctors suspected blockage of the small intestine.

No such blockage was found, he added, "but the surgery disclosed some vascular congestion and inflammation of the small intestine."

Mills Shows Interest In Tightening A Loophole

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., expressed interest Tuesday in a university economist's proposal to end the preferential tax treatment of capital gains and to tax them like any other income.

Such a plan, if enacted, would have the effect of increasing the tax liability of the wealthy. Under present law, only half the profits arising from the sale of stock or other assets held six months or longer are subject to income tax.

Average Man
At a hearing of his House Ways and Means Committee on tax reform, Mills said he could understand that the average working man might wonder why investors' wealth was taxed less heavily than his own wages.

Under the plan, as put forward by economist Harvey E. Brazer of the University of Michigan, capital gains would be taxed like other income, except that:

—The taxpayer could average out his gain over a period of years equal to the length of time he held the asset. If he made a $50,000 gain on the sale of stock he owned five years, for example, he could treat it for tax purposes as a $10,000 increase in income over the next five years.

—The taxpayer would be able to deduct losses from the sale of assets against ordinary income to reduce his tax liability. Under existing law, only 50% of losses which exceed gains can be subtracted from ordinary income, up to maximum of $1,000.

Lower Maximum Tax

Another element in Brazer's plan would be to lower from 70 to 50% the maximum tax on all forms of income. No taxpayer is presently compelled to pay more than a 36.5% tax on his capital gains, but this would rise to 50% for the wealthiest taxpayers under the idea advanced by Brazer and modified by Mills in his discussion of it.

Mills said the plan had "possibilities" but that he wanted to hear the views of Wall Street and others. He emphasized he was not endorsing the proposal.

Brazer said $13.7 billion would be paid in taxes if capital gains were taxed like ordinary income. Most would be paid by persons with taxable incomes over $100,000, he said.

As things stand now, Brazer said, the capital gains exemption "makes a mockery" of the contention that federal income taxes are levied on the basis of ability to pay.

Inflation

Testifying in favor of the capital gains exemption was Yale economist Henry C.

Wallich, who said much of the profit represents inflation and not real gain for the investor.

Most people, Wallich argued, are protected against inflation when wage earners receive large pay increases and the aged get Social Security benefit increases. Investors should receive the same protection, too, he said, through favorable tax treatment of capital gains.

"It's difficult for a person who works for wages or salary and who has no investment in stocks or property to understand if a capital gain is income why it is treated differently than other forms of income," Mills said.

There seemed no likelihood that Brazer's suggestion would be accepted when Mills' committee gets around in the spring to writing a tax reform bill.

The committee may adopt some far more modest proposal—lengthening, for example, the time period an asset must be held before the gain from its sale can qualify for the exemption. Under existing law the asset must be held six months or more.

Another common proposal is to adopt a sliding scale so that capital gains would be taxed less the longer an asset was held. This would have the effect of taxing the real profit and not just the inflationary increase in the asset's worth.

TAXES PAID IN CASH

Jerry Lee of Sacramento, Calif., who was short $12,954.09 on his 1968 and 1969 employees' withholding payments and delinquent on his 1972 fourth quarter payment, went to the local Internal Revenue Service office with cash, mainly in $20 bills. Officials wanted a cashier's check or a money order. Lee insisted cash was legal tender. He won his point when he brought in a reporter and news photographer. The hands of the revenueurs count the money.

Nixon Called 'Chief Clerk' Without Fund-Axing Power

Washington (AP) — Stripping the president of full power to impound funds would reduce him from chief executive to chief clerk, the Justice Department told Congress Tuesday.

Joseph T. Sneed, deputy attorney general, also said Congress has shown no signs it has the capacity to insure balanced budgets or control inflation.

Sneed testified before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee while the battle of the budget raged in both House and Senate.

The House Rules Committee cleared a bill to resurrect a popular farm program, the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP). House action is expected Wednesday.

Vetoes Predicted

And after a White House meeting with President Nixon, Republican congressional leaders quoted Nixon as saying he would take whatever steps necessary to keep his new budget intact. One leader predicted a substantial number of vetoes.

Sneed said the nation needs the impounding authority vested in the President to check overspending by Congress.

"The exercise of this authority by the President to promote fiscal stability is not usurpation. Rather it is in the great tradition of checks and balances upon which our Constitution is based," he said.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., and other senators said unrestrained presidential power to impound funds which Congress has told the White House to spend is not now either checked or balanced.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said the President's actions reflect "a royal view of the presidency."

'Not Constitutional'

Ervin said the fact that other presidents had impounded funds does not make the action constitutional. "The fact that murder and stealing occur in every generation does not make murder meritorious or larceny legal," Ervin said.

Sneed said it is his legal judgment Nixon has the power—derived from the Constitution and various acts of Congress—to kill entire programs or withhold any percentage of congressional appropriations without consulting Congress.

In the House, meanwhile, Chairman George Mahon, D-Tex., of the House Appropriations Committee, told Treasury Secretary George Shultz neither Nixon or any other presidents have had the power to impound.

Shultz described the President as a "law abiding" chief executive who is acting on full legal advice.

The farm program REAP was killed in late December by the Nixon administration on grounds it was a low priority item. The legislation cleared for House action would earmark $225 million for the program during the year ending June 30.

Priority Squabble

Democrats on the House Agriculture Committee said Congress should set spending priorities, not the President.

The Senate Agriculture Committee was urged by Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, to restore another farm program killed by the White House. It would subsidize loan programs for rural housing.

Ag Department To Examine Farmer Income Tax Returns

Washington (AP) — President Nixon issued without publicity last month an executive order giving the Department of Agriculture authority to examine income tax returns filed by farmers over the past five years.

The order was characterized Tuesday as an invasion of privacy by freshman Rep. Jerry Little, D-Mo., who uncovered the order of Jan. 17. Little said the order stated:

"It is hereby ordered that income tax returns made for taxable years beginning on or after Jan. 4, 1967, of persons having farm operations shall be open to inspection to the extent readily available in the Internal Revenue Service ... by the Department of Agriculture as may be needed for statistical purposes only."

The White House acknowledged the executive order had been filed with the Office of the Federal Register. A spokesman said no press release had been issued on the order but added there was no hard and fast rule on whether executive orders are accompanied by press releases.

Little said he does not feel farmers would want Agriculture Department employees to have access to their tax returns.

"Farmers completed a lengthy farm census just prior to Jan. 1, 1970," he said.

"I can't imagine what farmers' tax returns would show that these census figures do not show. If the United States Department of Agriculture wants information about the farmers let them include the questions on one of the farm census instead of opening up confidential tax returns of farmers."

Cook's Appointment To Head SEC Is Seen As Defeat For Nixon Aide

The New York Times

The expected appointment of Bradford Cook as chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission is seen by many Wall Streeters as a defeat for Peter M. Flanagan, the well-connected assistant to the President for international economic affairs.

Flanagan, considered the man-to-see by businessmen interested in receiving high administration officials, has been the chief sponsor of another candidate for the job — C. Calvert Knudsen, senior vice president of the Weverhauser Co.

Flanagan's father was president of the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. and whose mother was a member of the Anheuser-Busch brewery family. Flanagan brought Knudsen to Wall Street last month to introduce him to some of the financial community's leaders.

He backed Knudsen, even though he was a friend of Cook's father — George Cook, a leading Nixon backer in Nebraska and chairman of the Bankers Life Nebraska.

But, despite their joint efforts, Cook, the 35-year-old director of the SEC's division of Market Regulation, apparently will move into the top post.

Eight Insurance Firms Agree To Head Off National No-Fault

Washington (AP) — An agreement by eight major insurance companies to head off national no-fault car insurance legislation was described in the Senate Tuesday as aimed at preserving industry profits and slowing competition.

That's what Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., a bitter opponent of no-fault, told representatives of five major insurance companies called before the Senate Commerce Committee to explain the ingredients of plan of action they adopted at a December meeting at the Camelback Inn in Scottsdale, Ariz.

The Bank of New York led the rollbacks, saying it was "imposing its rate" in a desire to cooperate with the Committee on Interest and Dividends.

Philadelphia's Girard Trust said it was withdrawing its increase until the government economic controls committee had study information the bank had submitted supporting its rates.

The eight companies dominate auto insurance, writing 36% of all policies and collecting $6 billion a year in premiums.

As explained in minutes of the meeting, the companies adopted a minimum type of plan, watered down in comparison to the proposed federal standards, and similar to one drawn for Florida.

The companies decided to lobby for state, rather than federal, implementation, and targeted 19 states for a maximum effort. They are Washington, West Virginia, California, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Hawaii, Colorado, Ohio, New York, and Texas.

"It is interesting to note," said Moss who chaired the hearing, that the chairmen of the House and Senate Commerce committees, Rep. Harley Staggers D-W.Va. and Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., a federal no-fault architect, were from two of the states targeted for action.

Magnuson introduced a no-fault national car insurance bill in the Senate Jan. 12. Basically it would automatically reimburse a driver for his medical and rehabilitation expenses and lost wages, within limits.

Included at the Camelback meeting were representatives of All State, Fireman's Fund, Nationwide, the Hartford Insurance Companies of North America — which testified Tuesday — and State Farm, Kemper and Liberty Mutual set to testify Wednesday.

Of the top five auto insurers, only Aetna, a strong federal no-fault supporter, did not attend.

The industry spokesmen said generally that their meeting was not secret, as some have charged, and that the intent was to unify behind an effective compromise plan which would, in their opinion, reform auto insurance.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Thoughtful people should want to give a hard look at two bills sent this week to the floor of the Legislature, both of them having to do with welfare. The bills would increase payments to Aid to Dependent Children recipients, one raising the minimum for a family of four to $307 a month and the other calling for a floor of $245.60 for the same sized family.

The present figure is $192. One can almost hear the disagreement that will be registered in some quarters to these measures and the nearly $8 million to $15 million a year they would add to the tax load at the state and federal levels combined.

It is a popular thing these days to look with skepticism at any kind of handout and the attitude is being nurtured by President Nixon who speaks of anyone in need as one possessed of the plague. But is this really the kind of attitude that we want to prevail in the land?

Give a little thought to the above figures. Imagine a family of four, three children and an adult, living on a monthly income of $192. Imagine trying to pay the food, shelter and clothing bills out of that.

Just to pay for those essential items would demand of the head of such a family an efficiency and ability that are simply beyond our human capacity.

Consider then what you might have left over, after paying for bare existence, for such things as transportation, utilities, doctors, entertainment, laundry and cleaning. The fact is that you would have nothing left over and you would simply forego a great many things that most of us consider to be essentials of living in our own lives.

Not only are we niggardly in our ADC program but we are now heading into a political period in which we may turn a deaf ear to many forms of assistance aimed at cutting down the welfare rolls. We are, through the actions of President Nixon, taking aim on programs in the job training, housing, education and health fields.

It is through such programs as these that we sought to uplift the impoverished and gradually lead them to a life of independence and productivity. We had not totally succeeded by any means in our objectives but we were trying and we were succeeding many times.

Yesterday we spoke here of public disenchantment with and lack of confidence in private enterprise on the part of the American people. We cited a Harris Survey showing public belief that business and industry were unresponsive to human or social needs.

And this occurs at a time when Nixon seems to say that we must return to the market place and to individual responsibility in seeking a solution to our human ills. Coupled with the return to the market place would be a new responsibility upon local government.

We spoke skeptically of the prospects for solutions to human and social problems coming from private enterprise. We did so, not from a critical point of view, but from the point of view of simple reality.

The truth is that social welfare is not and probably cannot be the responsibility of the private sector, either individually or institutionally. Uplifting the poor and beating down the doors of discrimination may at times be within the realm of private responsibility but not often.

Private industry cannot build subsidized housing, cannot provide health care to those who cannot afford it, cannot provide jobs skills to the unemployable, cannot give special education to the deprived or any number of other things that millions of underprivileged people need. We hope when the political dust of 1973 is finally settled, we have not dismantled our entire social welfare structure without providing a viable alternative.

Consumer Convenience Inflating Prices On Food

WASHINGTON — Many Americans would argue the charge that they are digging their graves with their teeth. They see themselves eating their way not so much into the cemetery as into the poorhouse. And they will feel even more strongly that way when the enormous jump in wholesale food prices during December is fully carried over into retail stores.

Everyday reality doesn't conform to official explanations of food price increases. The traditional answer is that the demand for food is outstripping supply. Yet many families would testify that they are eating no more than they used to. And they are substituting an increasing amount of hamburger for steaks. As for the supply problem, supermarket shelves are piled as high as ever.

A food-price credibility gap may be opening up under the government. Worried consumers are neither amused nor assuaged by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz's recent comment that they are "getting a bargain on the whole." A lot of people are spending only 16 cents of every take-home dollar on food, as Butz reported, but that is scant comfort to the poor, the unemployed or those on fixed incomes.

There are any number of explanations for the rising cost of food. The National Review takes the position that government policies are the biggest factor. Among these are farm price supports, quotas on food imports, counterproductive government regulations and a general inflationary trend induced by large increases in the money supply.

Some of the reasons for rising beef prices are a bit bizarre. Most consumers probably are not aware that the icy Humboldt Current has shifted off the west coast of South America. The result is a falloff in fish catches, a consequent falloff in the production of Peruvian fish meal used in cattle feed, a slowdown of beef production, and a rise in worldwide meat prices. Some analysts are still blaming the 1970 corn blight for lagging beef production in this country.

Trying to find out the cause of spiraling food costs is thus a circular and never-ending quest. Supermarket chains, processors, transporters and farmers all have excellent arguments showing that they are not to blame. The consumer who looks into the question may come away believing, like Pogo, that "we have met the enemy and he is us."

The consumer is largely responsible for food prices, quite apart from the fact that his demand jacks them up. The typical buyer wants more than just food, he wants it individually packaged in convenient amounts.

Besides all the advertising it takes to sell these foods, the buyer will pay for the emulsifiers, texturizers, stabilizers, and preservatives which they require. Thus the prospect is for higher food prices not only in the months, but in the years ahead. And in the final analysis, most of us will prefer to buy convenience, along with nutrition, at the supermarket.

Lincoln Seeks Public Test

Concerned with the threat of the Legislature's interference in municipal affairs, the Lincoln City Council Monday addressed itself — perhaps futilely — to the matter of electing council members by district.

The council went on record in opposition to LB448, introduced by Lincoln Sen. Wally Barnett, which would require the election of five of this city's councilmen by district and two at-large. Currently all members are elected at-large. Barnett claims that Lincolnites do not feel properly represented under the present system. Council members deny that great public support for the district election system exists and Councilwoman Helen Boosalis noted that city clerk's records show that in the past ten years no requests have been made to the council to put the matter to a vote of the people.

The council agreed, however, to steps which could lead to a test of public support in Lincoln for district election of councilmen. On a 5-2 vote, the council called upon the City Charter Revision Committee to consider submitting a charter amendment on the subject to a vote of the people.

Councilmen Merle Hale and Dick Hartssock opposed referral of the matter to the charter committee, arguing instead that if public support for district election does exist, it should be evidenced by a grass roots petition drive to put the issue on the ballot. And we would agree that this would perhaps be a truer test of public sentiment.

On the other hand, the majority's position has merit. Referring the issue to the charter committee would not automatically mean that an amendment would be put to a public vote this spring, but it would at the very least allow for a thorough discussion of the method of electing council members in Lincoln and a probable recommendation for a ballot proposition.

Either approach to testing the sentiments of Lincoln citizens is probably a matter of academic discussion only, however. The strong early support by the Legislature of an Omaha district election plan indicates that state lawmakers plan to bend to the most obvious pressures rather than allowing the voters in Omaha and Lincoln to speak out on the issue first.

Formal Ties With China

Sen. Henry Jackson said on a "Face the Nation" television interview last Sunday that the United States should move without delay to establish formal diplomatic ties with the Peoples Republic of China. The Washington Democrat said the step would mean cutting formal ties with Taiwan, but that he hoped the U.S. could maintain a mission on Chiang Kai-shek's island for communications and continue to fulfill treaty commitments to the Nationalist regime.

Timed with the recent announcement that national security advisor Henry Kissinger will again visit Peking in the near future, Jackson's public disclosure of his position might be read as an insight into President Nixon's thinking on the matter.

Nixon has pretty much enjoyed Jackson's confidence and support in his foreign policy adventures. Moreover, Jackson's expertise in foreign affairs, if not his hawkish nature, has won the senator respect in both parties.

It might be that the President has convinced Jackson to call publicly for an immediate diplomatic recognition of the mainland government in order to measure the response from Nixon's foreign policy critics in the conservative wing of the GOP and from congressional Democrats who for political reasons may oppose diplomatic relations with China if they come on Nixon's terms. It may be that the President feels he has gone just about as far as he can with regard to accommodation with China and now he feels he should test how much bipartisan support he could get for a more aggressive policy.

At any rate, the agreements reached in China almost a year ago paved the way for stronger ties between the U.S. and China once the Vietnam and Taiwan questions were settled. One question has been settled, tentatively at least, and the other is now open for discussion.

TOM WICKER

A Chance For The Senate

NEW YORK — Members of Congress are making more noise than they have in years about the need to reassert themselves as a co-equal branch of government with the presidency and the Supreme Court. It may well be too late for that, but there are a few things Congress could do, and one of them would be to insist that President Nixon submit the name of a man of stature and experience as the new director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Patrick Gray, President Nixon's interim appointee, won't do. It may even be that the President is not going to nominate him for the job, one of the most important in government. But whether Gray's name is submitted to the Senate or not, that body owes it to itself and to the country to insist on a better nominee.

It has the power to do so. Under the terms of the 1968 Omnibus Crime Act, the new director must be nominated by the President and confirmed by the Senate, as if he were a cabinet officer, an ambassador or a Supreme Court justice. Confirmation may be defeated or filibustered, and since the new director will head a huge apparatus with the power to affect the lives of all Americans, the Senate should have no hesitation in using its power to the necessary limit.

Gray is not a proper nominee primarily because of his political partisanship. His background includes a long history of Republican party activity, which is why he has had high posts in this administration — not because of the distinction of his career outside politics. This alone would tend to make his appointment appear political — an appearance sharply enhanced in last year's campaign when he made speeches favorable to the Nixon point of view, and when it was disclosed that 21 FBI field offices in 14 important states were directed to supply information on criminal justice to give Nixon "maximum support" in his campaign. Earlier, Gray had said he would investigate the Soviet-American grain deal, primarily because Vice President Agnew already had claimed the investigation was under way.

Now Judge John J. Sirica, before whom the Watergate case was tried, has bluntly criticized the Department of Justice for failing to investigate completely or properly prosecute the matter. It is, of course, the FBI upon whom the department relies for such investigations, but Judge Sirica has openly expressed the hope that even a Senate committee will do a better job.

It also has been reliably reported that the FBI under Gray made no real investigation of the political espionage and sabotage activities allegedly planned last year by Donald H. Segretti — who was reported to have close links to the White House. In both these failures, if Gray's political interests were not responsible for poor FBI performance, the public certainly had good reason to think they might have been.

An openly political director is bound to destroy not only the non-partisanship that J. Edgar Hoover largely maintained in his half-century in the post, he is certain to damage FBI professionalism and morale, as well as public confidence in the bureau. More important, the FBI can reach so far into the lives of all Americans that no administration should have direct

The Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) was eliminated by President Nixon by using dictatorial powers to override the entire Congress. This action will do great harm to the entire nation. Any other program to protect our environment will cost the nation's taxpayers much more. As Marvin Russell, editor of The Nebraska Farmer, stated, "those responsible for REAP's elimination don't know a bargain when they see it."

This program has been time-tested over 35 years. Eighty-five per cent of the funds spent under this program go for pollution control and abatement. Of every dollar the federal government spends to keep our waters pure, the farmer on the average matches it with another dollar. Because the farmer pays about half of the cost of the project, he makes sure it is done at the least expense to him and the government. At a time when feed lot run-off and fertilizer pollution of the streams are of great concern to all the nation, Mr. Nixon has eliminated the only program geared to handle the problem.

Last year as a representative of the Nixon administration, Mr. Frick, administrator of ASCS, while testifying before the appropriations committee under questioning admitted that $300 million was needed to do the job rather than the $140 million he was asking for Congress approved $225.5 million for 1973 without one dissenting vote. This is $80 million more than was approved in 1972. In 1936 this program was funded at $500 million.

The American Farm Bureau Federation has done its share in opposing this program. This has been confirmed by a high administration official when he stated that the AFBF highly approved of the direction this program was taking

In another of his budget-cutting programs, Mr. Nixon has made his attack on the REA. He has raised interest rates on electric and telephone loans from two to five per cent and imposed $467 million of the funds in two years, again without the approval of Congress.

At first city folks may think this is fair, except that the way it was done is wrong. But let's look at the facts. The private power companies had first chance at this two per cent interest rate to build rural electric and telephone lines. When they refused to build the lines, the money was then loaned to cooperatives so they could do the job. Now after the lines are built, the private power companies would like to dominate the entire power field by destroying REA and public power.

In 1963-64 when a big push was made by private power companies to wreck the REA, the Electric Consumers Information Committee, Washington, D.C., published a book entitled "Top Stockholders of Private Power Companies." It showed how 22 private power companies dominate the electrical industry in America. They are interwoven into a huge network of private power companies which control 80% of the electricity and take 86% of the nation's electric revenues. Private power has 30 customers per mile of line, REA has three per mile. It also shows that some high company officials received at that time yearly salaries of $100,000 to $150,000.

In 1964 Senator Lee Metcalf of Montana was exposing attempts by private power to "brainwash" Congress. In one statement, he said: "They want to destroy any enterprise which can be used as a yardstick... root out anything that can remind the public that electric consumers are being fleeced through excessive electric bills."

Local Conflict

Overton, Neb.

In the February 1, 1973, issue of The Lincoln Star, there appeared on Page 24 in the extreme left-hand column an article which might have caused some people to come to a wrong and hasty conclusion. This article, written by Dean Terrill of the Southeast Nebraska Bureau needs some very careful analyzing before it is taken as gospel truth. The article deals with a very unpleasant and unlovely situation which erupted in our small community a few weeks ago and will not be healed for some time. This article has used phrases, gross misrepresentations and allegations to create a story for sale. Journalistically speaking, such writing is in bad taste, to say the least, for Mr. Terrill apparently wrote only what he heard and did not take the time nor expend the effort to check out every detail. Just when the turmoil around town had begun to wane and friends began again to speak to friends, this unpalatable sin was committed.

The article dealt with the barring of a basketball player from participation on the Overton High team because he was married. This student was barred, not "kicked off" as the article indicated. The Board of Education had such a policy on its books prohibiting involvement in extra-curricular activities by married students. It had been on the books for four years, having been placed there by the player's own father while he served as vice president of the board. It appeared on Page 8 of the November 3, 1969, Board Policies Handbook. There was therefore no surprise, as Mr. Terrill stated, but full knowledge that such a policy existed. This policy was rescinded by our present board on January 15, 1973.

The fact of this player's future being in doubt and in jeopardy also is a misleading statement for two reasons. At no time in the history of our school has anyone ever received an athletic scholarship. Some financial help has come to some very needy students but a tuition-based scholarship to a four-year college is unheard of. True, there can be an exception and there could be a first time but this is supposition. Secondly this student who is a senior registered to write the Scholastic Aptitude Test on November 4. He did not appear for his appointment and has not to this day re-registered. Either the S.A.T. or the A.C.T. test is a prerequisite for college entrance.

There are internal complaints from the bureau that Gray is not a good administrator, a decisive leader or a law-enforcement professional. These are hard charges to judge without close examination, but Gray's most publicized decision — to shoot out the tires of a hijacked airplane, leading to considerable danger for the passengers and crew — is not reassuring.

Who would have such stature? That is up to Nixon to decide, but the Senate has the right and the power to insist — as it has done in Supreme Court nominations that were scarcely less important — that Nixon choose wisely and with the public interest as his first concern.

Metcalf also noted that a study of utilities report filed with the Federal Power Commission showed that 80 utilities overcharged their customers more than $2 billion in a five-year period. (Note: Later they had to return this to the electric consumers.)

Of the 66 electric power issues that Congress has voted on, only seven are loans to REA. Most of the others relate to public power. Every taxpayer benefits from these as it keeps private power companies rates in line.

Repayment of REA loans has been almost 100%. Much of the propaganda that is spread by the enemies of REA, namely that they misuse these funds, is unfounded. The rules require that a certain per cent of funds must be held in reserve in case of disaster from storms, etc. These funds must then be immediately available for repairs.

Nebraska is a public power state and so are most of Nebraska's REAs. It would be a disaster if this nation would be controlled and monopolized by the private power industry. All the nation's electric consumers would pay much more in higher rates. The funding of REA and keeping electric rates competitive are what the entire issue is about.

Over the years the American Farm Bureau Federation has been advocating higher interest rates for REA. They have also been against public power. Few grass-roots members know this but AFBF resolutions and actions in Washington will confirm this.

All the big private power corporations had to do was get Mr. Nixon re-elected and he in his true fashion rewards them by using dictatorial powers to harass and maybe destroy the only competition they have.

Let's not be fooled by Mr. Nixon's budget cutting. His tax-saving hurts only the programs for the common people at home while he keeps right on with his powerful defense spending and favors for the rich.

To those of you who may read these lines, it is no small tragedy to see this once united community divided. People who were close friends now refuse to speak to one another. Left alone and given time, perhaps the gap may be breached and healed. All that is needed is for journalistic incompetence to raise its ugly head and the whole mess erupts again. If you want the truth, ask everyone involved, not just one or two individuals.

We have one of the finest schools in the state, one of the finest Boards of Education and a very fine little town made up of some very fine people. Let each one put behind us this unfortunate incident and get on with the business of life and living. There have been enough hurt and misery both in our world and community without adding to it. And to Mr. Terrill, it is hoped that he will profit from this experience of public confrontation.

The Logic

Fremont, Neb.
It was very enlightening to read on the front page of The Star recently that Governor Exon has recommended scrapping the state telecommunications system.

Part of this recommendation was that common carrier telephone services be used for all state communications. This also requires the towns and counties of the state to use the same service.

This recommendation is made in spite of the fact that the bid submitted for the state system by the telephone company bidders was the next to highest bid.

This process seems to me to be a peculiar way to save taxes. Where is the logic in throwing out all the bids so the next to highest priced service bid can be used? As I remember the propaganda the governor's staff was putting out last year, the common carriers could not or would not provide the service the state needs.

Seven Of Nine Of Lancaster Manor Board Are Appointed

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Seven of the nine members of an advisory board for Lancaster Manor were appointed Tuesday by the Lancaster County Board.

Board Chairman Robert Colin said that the two other members will be appointed next week.

Named Tuesday to the advisory group for 1973 are: Mrs. Jeanne Thorough Kelley, attorney; Jerry L. Sellentin, personnel director at Bryan Memorial Hospital; Dr. John R. Thompson, physician; Mrs. Pat Taylor, housewife; Mrs. William Wood, housewife; J. B. Dresselhaus, certified public accountant; and the Rev. Thomas C. Huxtable, pastor of Eastridge Presbyterian Church.

The board also deferred action until next week on a proposed contract with Community Regional Services Inc. to evaluate the vocational services division of the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR).

Former LOMR Director John Lucbs, who was terminated from that position by the county board last summer, protested the board's entering into a contract with Community Regional Services Inc. and offered a proposal from Human Resources Consultants whom he represents.

LOMR Director Robert Smith had told the board that the only reason that the LOMR advisory board had suggested Community Regional Services Inc. was because it was familiar with the local setup, and in the interest of time the board felt action should be taken as soon as possible.

Lucbs contended that his firm, even with the delay in drawing a contract, could complete the project in less time than Community Regional Services proposed.

In other action the board passed a motion that the county employees under the jurisdiction of the commissioners who will be required to work three holidays to be observed by most county offices will be given three extra days off at some other time during the year.

Board Chairman Robert Colin noted that the following offices under the county board's jurisdiction would be open on Lincoln's Birthday, Arbor Day and Columbus Day: County Commissioner's Office, Lancaster Manor, Westview County Welfare, Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation, and the maintenance staff.

The Juvenile Court had advised the board that it would remain open on the three days as requested by the commissioners.

Would Be Open

It was pointed out that the Civil Defense office would be open but that the office staff would have those holidays off and that the sheriff's office, as always, would remain open but the staff would be awarded compensatory time off.

County Atty Paul Douglas said his office would be closed to the public but that his staff would be working to handle already-scheduled appointments.

In response to a letter from the elected officials stating that they would observe the 11 holidays being observed by the state, Colin said that the officials had refused to meet with them when they initially asked them and that the response of some officials was "a hell of an attitude to take."

Commissioner Jan Gauger, who made the motion, passed at last week's meeting that the county observe the same eight holidays as the city, said that it wasn't that the board had any misconception that it had the authority to tell the elected county officials what to do but that the board had only asked the officials to consider opening the offices for the convenience of the public and to allow the employees three other days off at some other time.

In Senate Move

Washington (AP) — The Senate passed a resolution Tuesday to name the governments manned spacecraft control center in Houston, Tex., in honor of Lyndon B. Johnson.

Sen. Lloyd Bensten, D-Tex., sponsor of the resolution, said the late President deserves the honor more than any other man since his administration covered the entire Gemini orbital flight program and the first eight launches in the Apollo moon landing program.

The resolution now goes to the House.

County Publishing Of Fund Claims Said Legal

Lancaster County Atty. Paul Douglas Tuesday advised the commissioners that in his opinion the county is in compliance with the law in regard to publishing payroll fund claims.

Quoting the law, Douglas said that it does not "clearly state that the payroll fund claims are to be published on an individual basis" but only requires publishing a brief statement of proceedings, including the amount of each claim allowed, the purpose of the claim and the name of the claimant.

In response to several letters concerning the comments of the State Auditor who claimed that the county was not in compliance specifically in not publishing payroll fund claims on an individual basis, Douglas said that under the present procedure the elected official makes a claim for salaries for his office and that the County Clerk publishes it as such.

"I see no legal reason that we should publish the employees' salaries every two weeks at an annual cost of approximately $4,000 to Lancaster County," the letter stated.

The commissioners had asked Douglas for an opinion after there was some indication that most counties throughout the state were not complying with the law.

In other action, the board approved subject to the sanction of the county attorney an agreement for LOMR to go ahead with a contract for leasing four vans for transporting children and also to be used by Lancaster Manor.

LOMR Executive Director Robert Smith told the board the insurance coverage would amount to $15 per month per van bringing the total monthly leasing costs to $1,781.60 or approximately $200 less than the amount the county had been paying the Lincoln Transportation System for use of minibuses.

The commissioners also approved a lease agreement for one van for exclusive use of Lancaster Manor.

In other action, the board:

Rule Of Law Asked In Sex Offense Cases

The State Supreme Court was asked Tuesday to adopt a rule of law which requires that in all cases of sex offenses, the complaining witness be examined by a psychiatrist.

The request was made by attorneys for Joe R. Masetas of Scottsbluff.

He was convicted by the Scotts Bluff County District Court of statutory rape and sentenced to a prison term of three to five years in connection with an incident involving a 14-year-old girl.

The attorneys, in the appeal brief technically seeking a new trial, said that it has been documented there are cases where charges are untrue.

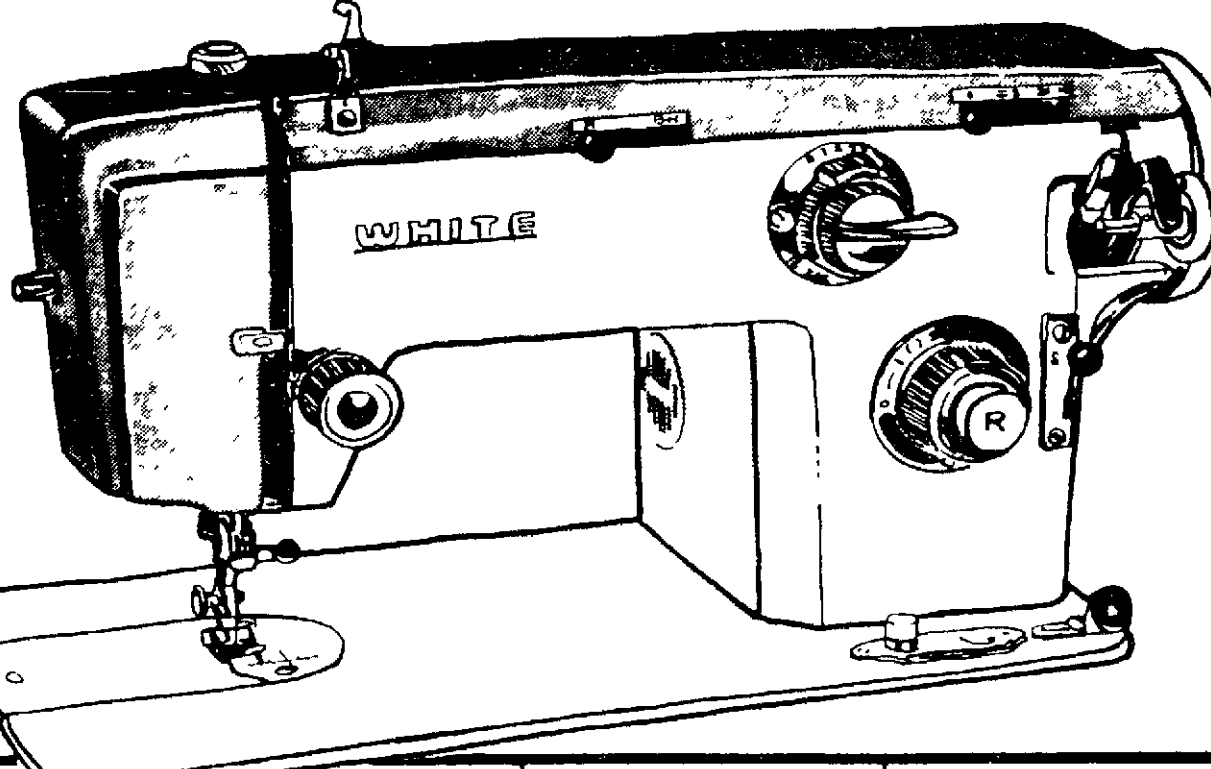

In fact, the brief said, the judiciary has been "warned of a form of mental abnormality occasionally found in female complainants in sex offense cases which consists of a disposition to fabricate sex charges against innocent men."

In the case at bar, the attorneys said a psychiatric examination of the girl was requested but was turned down by the court. On the basis of the warning, the examination should have been ordered, the court was told.

Will Tower Topple?

Pisa, Italy (AP) — Authorities launched an international contest on how to keep the leaning tower of Pisa from toppling. One proposal was to dismantle it, reinforce the sinking base, and put the tower up again — it is present tilt with the top 14 feet from the perpendicular.

I have to work 10 hours a day. Is it legal to require women to work more than 10 hours? Can an employer require you to come in on your day off? What about coffee breaks? What can we do about violations of labor laws? —D.S., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Although there used to be special laws regarding the employment of women such special regulations have virtually disappeared in the wake of equal opportunity legislation in recent years. There are no special statutes on hours for women in Nebraska.

Federal law requires only that workers be paid time and a half for more than 40 hours work per week, although some federal contracts require employers to pay overtime rates after eight hours in a day.

The State Department of Labor, Safety Division, also says that days off are at the discretion of the employer as are coffee breaks. Your employer is required to give you only a 30 minute meal break sometime approximately in the middle of your work day.

If you suspect violations of labor laws where you work, call or write the State Department of Labor, Safety Division, Box 94755 at the Capitol. Some businesses fall under federal labor regulations. The State Labor Department can tell you if your employer does. If you know your employer is under federal regulations, address your inquiries to the Wage and Hour Division of the U.S. Dept. of Labor listed under United States in the telephone directory.

Last October I stopped by the Cleburne County Times office in Heber Springs, Ark., and paid for a six-month subscription to their paper to start Dec. 1, 1972.

I received no paper on that date and have written twice since then. They have not even had the courtesy to reply to my letters so I am turning this over to ACTION LINE hoping to get some results. —Vern Amern, Lincoln ACTION LINE: We have been promised some results. Office personnel at the Times figure that the subscription may have been lost because of the delayed starting date. They assume you don't want back issues so will institute your six-month subscription with the next edition.

Is the statement that Jimmy Dean makes on TV about his sausage being number one in the U.S. true? —E.M.M., Pleasant Dale ACTION LINE: We called John Beegle with Holland Associates, the advertising agency for Jimmy Dean Meat Co. products.

He says he doubts "there's any official determination" of which is the number one selling breakfast sausage in the U.S. He says he checked with trade magazines and pork producers and couldn't find any statistics on the subject.

Beegle says that the company believes that it is the best seller at least in the areas where it is sold. Market studies are done, he says, some weeks after introduction of the product in a particular area.

He says the editor of "The National Provisioner," a trade magazine, told him the company is the "largest producer of pure pork sausage made of young, prime market animals in the U.S."

Is there a Big Brother organization in Lincoln? —Terry Sund, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: No, but a comparable program is the YMCA's Y-Pals project.

Last year ago 282 youngsters were matched with trained volunteer Y-Pals in a big brother-big sister type program. Kids who seem to need special adult attention are frequently referred to the program, according to director Elizabeth Wilson.

If you wish to take the training and spend about an hour a week with a child, call Ms. Wilson at the Y-Pals office of the Central YMCA.

With all due respect to the Quaker Oats Co. which makes Willy Wonka candy, they did send me several cases of the candy which were given out to the younger citizens of Blue Hill and along my mail route. I have also received a large autographed picture of author Roald Dahl and his wife Patricia Neal and some other mementos. —Willy Wonka, Blue Hill

ACTION LINE: This letter came last week as some added information for "Curious" of Mitchell who asked if there really was a Willy Wonka in Nebraska and how he benefitted from his famous name.

On Jan. 30 I transferred my car registration from Douglas County to Lancaster County. The assessed valuation in Douglas County was $325. In Lancaster they valued the car at $350. Does moving 50 miles increase the value of my car? —John J. Chess, Lincoln ACTION LINE: According to the Lancaster County Assessor's office, the change is due to a correction made recently in the book of valuations issued uniformly to all counties by the State Motor Vehicle Department. There had been a mistake in the valuation of 1968 Musangs of the kind you have.

Presumably your car would have appeared to increase in value without the 50 mile move.

In January you published a letter from Eric Reveland and Randy Gilmore who were trying to get a list of AM radio stations around the country they could try to pick up on. I have prepared some additional sources. Will you forward this letter to them? —Hubert O. Paulsen Jr., Lincoln ACTION LINE: We certainly will. Nice of you to take the time to prepare such an exhaustive list for your fellow readers.

Pepole like you help immensely in making ACTION LINE effective.

Wenant Named To State Board Of Sanitarians

Gov. J. James Exon announced Tuesday the appointment of Herbert Wenant of Lincoln to the Board of Sanitarians.

Wenant, currently director of food inspection with the State Agriculture Department, will fill the unexpired term of James King of Lincoln, who resigned recently. The term expires Dec. 31.

Exon also reported the reappointment of Justin Dierks and Fred H. Jolly of Omaha, and Dr. William F. Nye of Lincoln, to the sanitarians board.

Poker Parlor Legal

Gardena, Calif. (AP) — The room is huge, its walls covered by plush red velvet and wood paneling.

It might be a ballroom, except the shuffling sound comes not from dancing feet but from $7 decks of cards.

The 280 persons on the floor are crowded around 15 circular tables, chips before them peering through cigarette and cigar smoke. The game is poker and the gambling is entirely legal.

One Of Six
This is the Monterey Club, one of six poker parlors in this small suburban city 15 miles south of downtown Los Angeles. The gambling is legal because California exempts five-card draw poker from its gaming statutes.

It is the only state other than Nevada to do so.

But unlike the better known Nevada casinos, which are often raucous, the atmosphere here is calm and quiet — remarkably quiet in fact, considering there may be 400 people in any of the clubs at one time. With eight players to a table and no house dealers, 280 people can play at once. Others watch others wait for table openings and others spend time in the on-premises restaurants and television rooms.

Nothing Exciting
There's nothing here to get excited about, explains Paul Renn, card room manager at the Rainbow Club. Players aren't surrounded with the intense fast-paced get-rich-quick action of Las Vegas. People aren't living it up on vacations and conventions.

And alcohol is not allowed in any of the clubs — an ordinance imposed by the image-conscious city council.

Although draw poker is legal throughout the state at local option, Gardena is the only city in Los Angeles County which has seen fit to permit it. And although there are some 400 card clubs operating in the state, Gardena, with 210 tables in its six clubs is the uncrowned capital.

Many Elderly
Many of the players here, particularly during the day, are elderly. For most of them the card clubs are a social gathering spot.

They're on fixed incomes — Social Security, pensions, things like that — and they generally play the small games where they know everyone and everyone knows them. It's something for them to do and a good way to make friends.

Betting limits, fixed by city ordinance, range from $1 to a top of $20.

The Gardena clubs, in operation since 1936, make their money from the restaurants and by charging each player a rental fee for the facilities.

Prices Vary
The prices vary with the stakes of the game, ranging from a low of 75 cents per half hour to a high of $4 per half hour.

Together the clubs gross upwards of $15 million a year.

The establishments are privately owned but the city keeps a tight rein on them and sees that it shares in the financial benefits.

In fact, the money Gardena collects from the clubs in license fees and taxes makes up more than one-eighth of the city's $88 million budget and is used to reduce property taxes for Gardena's 50,000 residents.

Seminars Set On Branding

A series of evening seminars on branding are planned for this week, with all citizens and interested persons invited to attend the meetings nearest to them.

A film on livestock rustling will be shown and there will be a general discussion of brand laws with several speakers covering enforcement, registration, theft prevention and the need for permanent identification of livestock.

The meetings will be Tuesday, Feb. 6 at Patrick's Parish Hall, O'Neill at 8 p.m.; Wednesday, Feb. 7 at H. Club building, Turgounds at Broken Bow at 7:30 p.m.

Thursday, Feb. 8, Holiday Inn at Kearney at 7:30 p.m.

Guyana Settling Inlands

Georgetown, Guyana (UPI)—Young Guyanans, trained in the pioneer skills of farming and defense, have established communities in the vast, rich hinterland that is this South American nation's unconquered frontier.

There are 700 of them, and they are the first graduates of a two-year program called the Guyana Youth Corps. It is designed to turn out youths with the skills and ambition to exploit the potential of the lands, rivers and forest of the almost unexplored region behind the coastal plain.

Guyana, on the northeast shoulder of South America, has 700,000 persons living in an area of 83,000 square miles. But 90% of them are crowded along the Atlantic coast in a flat, sometimes below-sea-level strip that supports rice, sugar and the population centers.

Across the rest of the nation there are a few ranchers in the Rupununi region of the Brazilian border, a few miners, a few lumberjacks and a few Amerindians—the latter being inhabitants whose ancestors predate the arrival of Columbus.

Prime Minister Forbes Burnham has based his dreams for his nation on the exploitation of the interior. From the forests, he has begun extracting a variety of trees and testing them for their lumber potential. Over the mountainous areas, which are geologically similar to the mineral-rich Canadian Shield, he is sponsoring surveys for possible increased mining. He has been eyeing the fast-flowing rivers for their hydroelectric potential.

Food For People
But more than anything, he has been thinking about hinterland farms that could feed the Guyanese people.

He has said Guyana will feed, clothe and house herself by 1975. It is a substantial goal for a nation that became independent only seven years ago, and before then had a colonial one-crop (sugar) economy that depended upon Britain for all her basic needs.

The key to the hinterland development program, as Burnham has often mentioned in his speeches, is igniting the people with inspiration. He admitted early last year that he had not completely succeeded.

But the Youth Corps has proved a starting place. The first 700 graduates have settled on cooperative farms, most in the extreme northwest of the nation in an area called Kaituma. A few of the graduates have returned to the coastal region to assist the government and private industry in improving conventional farms.

During the two years of training, the Youth Corps members, both male and female, are taught to raise crops and livestock, repair and service farm machinery, install electricity, build houses, keep books and other basic skills needed in isolated communities. In the evenings, they learn English, arithmetic, geography and the history of Guyana and the West Indies.

Military Training
In addition, they are all taught the use of firearms and basic military techniques. While Burnham has explained the military training in general terms of a need "to be able to defend the nation," about three-fifths of Guyana's territory is claimed by Venezuela and the claim has erupted in a few brief armed skirmishes in recent years.

Youths between the ages of 15 and 21 are eligible for the corps. The government has deliberately concentrated on recruiting unskilled and unemployed youngsters who roam the streets of Georgetown and the other cities. Male recruits outnumber females about four to one.

The training takes place at the Youth Corps headquarters at Tumatumari, a settlement about 125 miles up the Essequibo River from Georgetown on a new road that is being hacked across the hinterland on its way to the Brazilian border.

At the camp, the trainees get food and housing and two sets of uniforms, including boots. The food is carefully chosen to fit the diets of those of the Hindu and Moslem religion, since more than half of Guyana's people are descended from East Indian immigrants brought here a century ago as indentured servants.

The recruits receive a weekly allowance equivalent to $1.

White House Implicated In Watergate Spying Operation

•The New York Times

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH
Washington — At least one White House official knew of and initially aided the political intelligence operations led by G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt Jr. as early as February, 1972, four months before the Watergate arrests, according to government sources.

A well-informed government official said that Gordon C. Strachan, a former staff assistant to H. R. Haldeman, President Nixon's chief of staff, served as the initial contact between Liddy's intelligence operations and the political espionage and sabotage campaign allegedly managed by Donald H. Segretti.

The charge was the first directly linking a White House official to the political intelligence operation headed by Liddy and Hunt, both members of the Watergate bugging team. White House officials have repeatedly denied any involvement in or knowledge of such activities before the arrests at the quarters last June 17.

Last Aug. 29, President Nixon told a news conference that a staff investigation ordered by him "indicates that no one in the White House staff, no one in this administration, presently employed, was involved in this very bizarre incident."

"We are doing everything we can to take this incident and to investigate and not to cover it up," Nixon said. "We have cooperated completely."

Government sources said that Strachan, who joined Haldeman's staff in 1970 after working with Mudge, Rose, Guthrie and Alexander, the New York law firm of former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, supplied the California telephone number of Segretti to Liddy some time last February. He did so, one source said, after Liddy complained that the separate Segretti operation was "hurting us."

At the time of the Liddy contract, Strachan was reportedly working closely with Dwight C. Chapin, President Nixon's appointments secretary. Government officials said that both Chapin and Strachan have privately acknowledged their roles as White House contact for Segretti. The White House press office has declined to discuss the subject.

Strachan, who was appointed general counsel of the United States December, could not be reached in his office, despite repeated telephone calls. The White House, told of the New York Times information, had no immediate comment.

One government official who has been connected with the Watergate case since its inception said that Liddy was apparently having trouble recruiting intelligence agents in early 1972 because of previous contacts by Segretti, who began his operation in mid-1971.

"Someone Hurting Us" "So," this official recounted, "Liddy called up Strachan and said, 'Someone in the field is hurting us. Who do you have out there?'" After getting a description of Segretti's activities, Liddy was then quoted as saying that Segretti "wasn't the same person" he had run into. But Liddy asked for Segretti's telephone number, nonetheless, the official recalled, saying "I'd like to meet him anyhow."

"So he called Segretti," the official said of Liddy. "After that, Hunt took over."

The New York Times has previously reported that at least 19 telephone calls were made from Segretti's phone to Hunt's phone between mid-March and June of last year. At least six telephone calls from Segretti's phone were made to the White House switchboard and one call to Chapin's suburban Maryland home. But until Tuesday, the link between the Liddy-Hunt operation and Segretti was not known.

The White House announced last week that Chapin would leave the White House this spring for a job in industry. Some sources told the Times that he was being forced out against his wishes because of his connection to the Segretti operation.

According to one source, Chapin, Strachan and Segretti had all become friends in the early 1960s, during their undergraduate days together at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles. Later, Segretti and Strachan went to law school together.

Reds Inject New Issue In Stalled Force Talks

•The New York Times

Vienna — With East-West talks on force reductions in Central Europe still stalled here, the Soviet Union introduced a new issue Tuesday by proposing that Hungary's participation be restricted to that of a nonvoting member.

Western source said this would have the effect of preventing Soviet troops in Hungary from coming under any verification procedures that the conference might establish.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization, which first proposed the conference in 1968, had invited Hungary to be a full participant because that country is in Central Europe and because about 39,000 Soviet troops are stationed there.

The Soviet Union's proposal came at a meeting of its chief delegate, Oleg N. Khlestov, with Bryan Quarles Van Ufford, head of the Dutch delegation, and Jonathan Dean of the United States.

This was another in the private series of East-West contacts since the informal opening session of last Wednesday, the only session so far.

Resumption of the talks, which are intended to prepare for a full conference later, has been blocked by differences over procedure and participation, and ways to remove them have been sought in the private meetings.

One of these differences is over the status of Rumania, which has demanded full participation in the conference although the country is outside the Central European area and no Soviet troops are stationed within its borders.

The West has offered Rumania a status in the talks similar to those of the five NATO countries that are on the periphery of Central Europe — Norway and Denmark in the north and Italy, Greece and Turkey in the south and southeast.

As the conference was envisaged by NATO, the West would be represented as full participants by countries with forces in Central Europe — the United States, Britain, Canada, West Germany, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg.

Besides Hungary and the Soviet Union, three Warsaw Pact countries — East Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia, all with Soviet forces on their territory, were invited to represent the East.

Gas Said Cause Of Iowa Blast

Omaha (AP) — The area director of the Occupational Safety and Health Act said in Omaha Tuesday that the explosion which leveled three buildings and killed 13 people in Eagle Grove, Iowa, last week "undoubtedly was caused by natural gas."

Warren Wright, who headed a three-man investigation team, said the explosion was one of the most violent he had seen in his 15 years as a safety investigator.

Wright said that his investigation has disclosed that the explosion apparently occurred in the corner of the Coast to Coast store but the source of ignition is not known.

He said he had talked to the former owner of the store and was satisfied that there were no large volumes of volatile materials in the store.

Also leveled in the explosion Friday night were a jewelry store and a restaurant.

Boulder Bank Hit

Boulder, Colo. (AP) — The Avco Industrial Bank at Boulder was robbed by a masked man. Police said the man entered the bank, pulled a nickel-plated revolver, ordered employees to lie on the floor while he cleaned out two tellers' cash drawers, and escaped. The amount of money taken was not disclosed.

Armed Guards Patrol Airport

Armed guards went on duty at Lincoln's Municipal Airport Tuesday despite an injunction delaying new anti-hijacking measures.

Roland Harr, executive director of the Airport Authority, said "We had the system all set to go—so we're testing it out anyway."

The new security measures, which were scheduled to go into effect Tuesday, include two full-time and two part-time security guards, plus a Lincoln Police officer.

On Monday, a federal judge in Washington ordered a ten-day delay in enforcement of the new security measures.

A hearing has been set for Feb. 13th to determine whether to make the injunction permanent.

School Officials Discuss 1973-74 Salary Matters

Representatives of Lincoln Public School administrators met Tuesday morning informally with several Lincoln Board of Education members and Supt. John Prashch to discuss salary considerations for 1973-74.

The administrator is offered no specific proposals, but Prashch said he would bring to them a school board proposal in the near future for their reaction.

Administrators this year have decided to bargain with the school board on their own. In past years, they have been represented by a committee of administrators within the Lincoln Education Association, which represents teachers in the system.

The administrators, many of them principals, said generally that they expect increases in salary to reflect what they believe is their increasing work and responsibility load.

Curtis Announces Names To Fill Academy Vacancies

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Nebr., Tuesday announced his nominations to fill vacancies at the U.S. Air Force, Military and Merchant Marine Academies. He did not have a vacancy in the Naval Academy this year.

The selections will be on the basis of exams given by the Civil Service Commission, high school records, extracurricular achievements and various other standards.

The nominees:

Air Force Academy — principal, Robert F. Shafer, Holbrook; alternates, Don Bandemer, Geneva; Monty Boyd, Chairman; Eric Carls, Grand Island; Larry Dorn, Omaha; Kevin Keith, Bellevue; Charles Lynders, Pawnee City; Brett Moritz, Grand Island; Michael Nunn, Papillion; Jerry Swartz, Omaha.

Principal, John Smith, Pender; alternates, Stephen Audette, Omaha; Ronald Butterfield, David City; Robert Davidson, Sidney; Steven Hadley, Columbus; Douglas Hemke, Grand Island; Gary Lesque, Stratton; Scott Mason, Wynmore; Jeffrey Riese, Omaha; and Charles Roggenstein, Clarkson.

West Point — Principal, Michael McGinnis, Wisner; alternates, Mark Atkinson, Bellevue; James Hueter Jr., Omaha; Walter Kuswa, Bellevue; Stephen Lawler, Lincoln; Mark Lincoln, Omaha; Brent Manno, South Sioux City; Steven Mason, Wynmore; Philander Morrow, Omaha; and Thomas Tobin, Tokamah.

Merchant Marine — Competitive alternates, Ned Bork, Omaha; Eric Carls, Grand Island; Mark Conner, Papillion; Christopher Fornoff, Hayes Center; Bruce Gerns, Superior; Stephen Hansen, Edgar; James Love, Omaha; Michael Mizerek, Lincoln; Daniel Schaeffer, Arlington; and John Sorland, Lincoln.

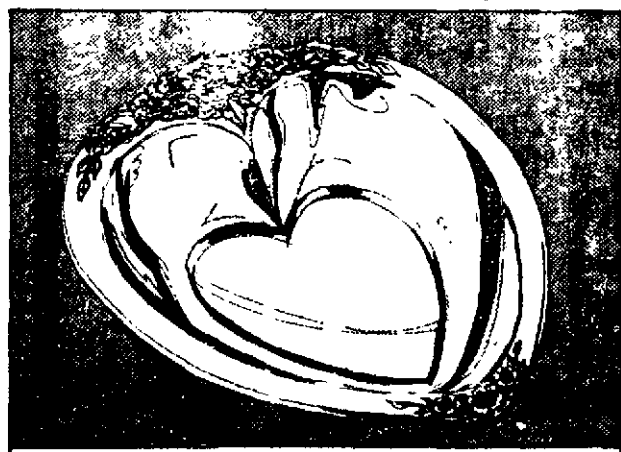

Rail Death Could Hurt Ag Goods

Des Moines, Iowa (AP) — Abandonment of rail service in primarily agricultural areas, including the corridor for proposed Freeway 520, poses a serious threat to movement of agricultural products in the 1980s, according to Earl Underbrink, president of the Fort Dodge Chamber of Commerce.

Underbrink told about 150 persons at a meeting of the Freeway 520 First Association here that the only other efficient means of transportation then will be truck.

But finding funds to complete the multi-million-dollar, 16-mile freeway — which would link Dubuque and Sioux City — is the major obstacle, the association learned.

Drug, Health Centers May Share Services

The Treatment Resources Committee of the Lincoln Drug Commission was told Tuesday that an affiliation agreement is being planned which provides for the sharing of services between the drug contact and counseling center and the community mental health center.

The contact and counseling center, which will get off the ground this spring with funding supplied largely by the Lincoln City Council, will probably also share some staff time with the Youth Service System now operated under the wing of the YMCA.

Eric McMasters, drug commission director, said the three agencies' willingness to cooperate could provide the community with the beginnings of a comprehensive mental health resources system which provides complimentary services.

The could well be on the road to good mental health services," said McMasters, following the Treatment Resources Committee meeting.

The Treatment Resources Committee has been working for sometime to see that the contact and counseling center is part of the community health center concept in Lincoln and the county.

The current mental health center, now run under the auspices of the state, is seeking federal funds to operate as a community institution.

McMasters also said that legislation being considered in the 1973 Nebraska Unicameral is important to the continued development of the community treatment concept in mental health care.

In other matters, the Treatment Resources Committee re-elected Rex Bevins as its chairman.

December Sales Said $26 Billion

Washington (AP) — December sales of merchant wholesalers were estimated at $26 billion, the Bureau of the Census said Tuesday.

After seasonal adjustment, the figure was $26.9 billion, up 3% from the month before and 17% above December of 1971, the report said.

Train Hit By Fire; One Dies

Boston (AP) — A flash fire struck a four-car subway train at the peak of the city's evening rush hour Tuesday and homeward-bound commuters were led choking and gasping from the smoke-filled subway tunnel.

Hospital officials said one person died and 50 persons were admitted for treatment of injuries caused by the fire.

Boston City Hospital reported receiving 30 fire victims and said seven were on the danger list. Massachusetts General Hospital reported receiving 20 injured persons.

Virtually all were said to be suffering from smoke inhalation.

Struck Second Car

The fire struck the second car of a train leaving Boston's busy South Station, according to a spokesman for the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA).

Witnesses reported there was a "flash of flame" in the drivers' cab between the first and second cars of the train, and that smoke filled the tunnel immediately.

Firemen and rescuers led scores of persons from the subway tunnel at South Station as rush hour traffic was jammed to a virtual standstill.

Some persons, many of them reported by firemen to be "elderly," were carried out of the tunnel on stretchers.

One fireman said the blaze was confined to the brake shoes on one of the cars. "It was mostly just smoke," he said.

Repeat Scene

The fire occurred in the same tunnel, between the same two subway stops, where a fire hit an inbound commuter train last month, forcing 400 commuters to walk half a mile to safety. There were no serious injuries in the first fire.

One commuter, Lou Goodman of Randolph, reported he saw sparks flying from beneath the train when he boarded it at Washington St., only one stop from the point where the fire occurred.

"I said to the driver, 'the train is sparking underneath,' but he said everything was all right," Goodman said. "About 100 yards later the train was smoking and burning," he said.

Goodman said the MBTA employees aboard the train "did a great deal to keep the situation under control and to evacuate the people as soon as they did."

By 5 p.m., firemen said, the fire was out. Passengers had been evacuated 15 minutes before that, they said.

Lay On Floors
Goodman said MBTA employees instructed passengers to lie on the floors of the subway cars until they could be evacuated.

Hundreds of other commuters were caught on trains at other points along the MBTA's Red Line when the power went off as the fire broke out. They subsequently walked to street level and were transferred to buses, an MBTA spokesman said.

Another commuter on the train said people aboard it "were going crazy" when the fire broke out.

"The train seemed to lurch off the tracks and there were a lot of sparks and flames," she said.

Many of the persons aboard the train received oxygen at ground level and attempted to find another way home. Many others were loaded into waiting ambulances.

7 Killed, 16 Injured When Freight Shears Off Back Of School Bus

Littlefield, Tex. (AP) — Seven elementary school pupils were killed and 16 others were injured Tuesday afternoon when a Santa Fe freight train collided with their school bus, authorities said.

In addition to the children,

Former Mayor Of Jersey City Granted Parole

Washington (UPI) — The U.S. Parole Board Tuesday granted parole effective March 1 to John V. Kenny, former Jersey City mayor and longtime Democratic boss who was sentenced to prison last May on federal income tax charges.

Parole Board Chairman Maurice H. Zigler said Kenny has a serious heart condition and other ailments. He is at the medical center for federal prisoners at Springfield, Mo.

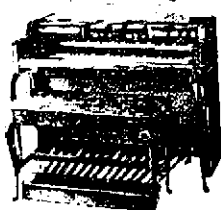

Kenny, 79, was mayor of Jersey City from 1949 to 1953 and for many years was Hudson County Democratic chairman. He pleaded guilty to filing false income tax returns on May 24, 1972.

He entered prison Nov. 27 after being given an 18-year sentence. This was reduced to 18 months after a judicial review determined he was in ill health.

Kenny also was fined $30,000 and that fine must be paid before he can be paroled, the board said.

the bus driver also was injured.

Police said witnesses told them the train hit the bus and sheared off its rear end.

"It was horrible," said Jane Welby of Hereford, who was driving by moments after the accident happened on U.S. 235.

'Bodies Everywhere'

"There were bodies of little children everywhere," she said. "They all appeared to be very little."

A funeral home spokesman identified the dead as Edward Ortiz, Aurora Ortiz, Diana Frausto, David Frausto, Mary Medina, Anita Martinez and Julie Davis. Their ages were not known.

The bus driver, identified as Artis Johnson, and one child were reported in critical condition at Lubbock Methodist Hospital, about 40 miles southeast of here.

Three of the injured were taken to Littlefield Hospital and 12 to the Medical Arts Hospital, also in Littlefield. Some were treated and released. Others were listed in "undetermined" condition.

Police said the bus carried mostly children from the small community of Fieldton, just north of Littlefield.

The bodies of the dead children were brought to the Hammons Funeral Home and friends and relatives began arriving after the ambulances.

"News travels fast here. We are a small town and this is a tragedy," a spokesman for the funeral home said.

Littlefield, population 7,000, has four schools which serve the surrounding area, including Fieldton.

C. O. Heinrich, an employee of the Santa Fe Railroad, said the collision occurred about 4:15 p.m. CST. He said the red warning lights at the rail crossing were working and all signs were visible.

"It's my information that the bus driver stopped at the crossing, failed to see the lights, and drove right on," he said.

The train caught the rear of the bus and "busted it open," Heinrich said.

The train was not derailed. It stopped immediately and later backed up through the crossing to confirm the flashing red lights were in operation, officials said.

Judge Fines Striking St. Louis Teachers

By United Press International
A circuit court judge Tuesday fined the St. Louis Teachers Association $180,000 for violating his order against a 16-day-old strike and $30,000 for each additional day the teachers stay away from their classrooms.

Judge Thomas McGuire, who ruled the association was in civil contempt for refusing to end the strike that has kept 103,000 children out of school, also fined Jerry Abernathy, the association's president, $1,600 plus $350 for each day the strike continues.

Spokesmen for the teachers association vowed that the strike would continue.

"We can't afford the fines but we'll have to work it out," said Charles Bolden, strike coordinator for the National Education Association. "We'll try to weather the fines, and the strike will go on. This is a movement, and you can't fine a movement."

Elsewhere around the nation teacher walkouts continued in Warwick, R.I., and Farmington, N.H.

Philadelphia Mayor Frank L. Rizzo said hiring long-term substitute teachers to open the balance of Philadelphia's strikebound schools "is not the answer" to the city's 22-day strike by teachers. The school board voted Monday to hire at least 1,200 substitutes to staff 45 schools that have remained closed. About 240 schools, manned by skeleton staffs, have remained open and nearly 50% of the city's 265,000 public school pupils are attending classes.

Roman Catholic lay teachers were back at work in the nine high schools of the Cleveland Diocese after staging "study day" walkouts Thursday, Friday and Monday. Members of the Lay Teachers' Association

Judge Fines Teachers Group

St. Louis (AP) — A Circuit Court Judge fined one of two striking St. Louis teachers groups and its president a total of $151,250 Tuesday for violating a temporary injunction against the 16-day-old strike.

Judge Thomas P. McGuire also levied daily fines until the strike ends against the St. Louis Teachers Association and its president Jerry B. Abernathy. Those fines, which began Tuesday, amounted to $30,000-a-day for the association and $350-a-day for Abernathy.

voted Monday night to end their work stoppage in exchange for new contract talks.

Tentative agreement for a one-year contract was reached between striking suburban

Chicago elementary school teachers and the District 89 School Board. The strike, which began Friday, closed seven of the district's 12 schools and affected 250 teachers and 6,000 pupils in Maywood, Melrose Park and Broadview.

Officials said the contract calls for a 1% pay raise, retroactive to September, and that schools could reopen Wednesday.

MISS LYNETTE TENHULZEN

Of interest to current campus circles, as well as those of very recent vintage, is the announcement made this morning by Mr. and Mrs. Gene Tenhulzen of Palmyra, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Lynette, to Leroy Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brown, Jr., of Oxford.

A March wedding is planned.

Miss Tenhulzen is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and now is working as a Home Agent in Madison County, with headquarters in Battle Creek.

Mr. Brown is a senior at the University of Nebraska where he is majoring in animal science with a dairy option. He is a member of Ag Men fraternity, and has served as a member of the University of Nebraska dairy judging team.

MISS KATHY MULLER

Announcement is made this morning by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Muller of Columbus, of the engagement of their daughter, Kathy, to Terry Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Nelson, Jr., of Newman Grove.

Sunday, Aug. 5, is named as the date of the wedding.

Miss Muller is a senior at the University of Nebraska Medical Center where she is majoring in medical technology.

Mr. Nelson also is a senior at the University of Nebraska and is majoring in mathematics.

Chit Chat with Roxi

Teenagers have problems as do all people, and whether that teenager is a girl or a boy makes no difference in the matter of worrisome questions. Talk your problems over with Roxi—Write to her in care of The Lincoln Star, Lincoln, Neb.

Dear Roxi:

This boy I used to like is paying attention to me now that I don't like him anymore. My problem is that when he pays attention to me I find myself liking him as much as I used to and all I get out of liking him before was unhappiness. So, what am I supposed to do? All my friends say he isn't worth the time of day, but then he's not paying attention to them.

A. First of all you are making a mountain out of a molehill. Relax and enjoy what is happening to you. If you really like this boy and the feeling is mutual then great. Don't let your friends decide for you how you feel. Respect their opinions, but decide for yourself what you want.

Dear Roxi:

I have a friend, at least I thought he was a friend, who is constantly criticizing me in front of our friends. He acts as though he always is right—never wrong. What can I say to him the next time he starts in?

A. The next time Mister Know-it-All opens his mouth simply say—"well, not all of us can be perfect." He will get the message loud and clear.

Dear Roxi:

I have been going out with a boy who is very popular in school. Being popular there are stories that I have been hearing about him that are just awful. Of course I don't believe them, but after a while of hearing them constantly a person starts to believe them. That is my problem. I really like this boy and these stories are beginning to affect me, which is bad. How can I stop believing them?

A. Remind yourself stories are not facts and they have a habit of changing content as they progress from one person to another. If you really like this boy then you must realize the kind of person he is. Does he sound like the person in those stories? Chances are not. Bear with the troublemakers. Once they realize the stories aren't bothering you, they won't have anything to talk about.

Anniversary Party

When Mr. and Mrs. Donald Handy were host and hostess at a 4 o'clock until 6 o'clock open house last Sunday afternoon at their home, the affair was a surprise anniversary party which honored the 30th wedding anniversary of Mrs. Handy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hopkins.

Assisting in the hostess role were Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins three other daughters, Mrs. Roger Lampert, Mrs. Patsy Brock, and Mrs. Ronald Farber of Davey.

Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins have 13 grandchildren.

To do it right doesn't mean it will cost more. See the professionals...

Ballet Class

Miss Edna McCrae, a nationally-known ballet instructor from Chicago, Ill., will conduct classes at the University of Nebraska on Tuesday evening, Feb. 13.

The beginning class will be held at 6:30 o'clock, and the intermediates will meet at 7:45 o'clock in Room 304 of the Women's Physical Education Building on the NU campus.

For many years, Miss McCrae's classes have drawn both amateur and professional ballet dancers.

She has taught company classes for Robert Joffrey's summer sessions at Tacoma, Wash., and she also has managed the children who appear in Ruth Page's "Nutcracker" productions.

Box Supper

The fourth grade Camp Fire Girls of District 1 will entertain their fathers at a box supper to be held at Bethany Christian Church, 1645 No. Cotner Blvd., on Thursday evening, Feb. 8.

The dad-daughter event is scheduled for 6:15 o'clock.

Bridal Attendants Named

Announcing plans this morning for a Valentine's Day wedding is Miss Julie Marie Lorchick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lorchick, whose marriage to Michael Ohlswager, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ohlswager, will be solemnized at a 7 o'clock ceremony on Wednesday, Feb. 14, at the St. Mary's Catholic Church.

Miss Lorchick has named her sister, Miss Cynthia Lorchick, as her honor attendant and bridesmaid will be Miss Vicky Swanson.

Miss Cindy Ohlswager, sister of the bridegroom, will serve the bride-elect as flower girl and Miss Lorchick's brother, Richard Lorchick Jr., will be ringbearer.

Serving Mr. Ohlswager as best man will be Richard Herrington and groomsmen will be Richard Lear, Thomas Ohlswager and Kelly Lorchick will be ushers.

On Thursday evening, Jan. 18, Miss Lorchick was presented with a miscellaneous shower at the home of her parents, when Miss Cynthia Lorchick and Miss Theresa Parra were hostesses.

Mr. Ohlswager's sister, Mrs. Larry Peterson, paid prenuptial courtesy to the future bride when she was hostess at a personal shower on Sunday evening, Jan. 21.

Miss Lorchick is currently working at Latsch Brothers Inc., and her fiancé is associated with Mowbray Buick Company.

Your heart, your health, and your margarine.

A vital message from the makers of Mazola® Margarine.

What many heart specialists say:

Although there is still a lot to be learned about the cause and prevention of heart disease, many heart specialists strongly suggest we limit the saturated fats and cholesterol in our diets. They say there is encouraging evidence that people (even people with an inherited tendency toward heart disease) can substantially reduce the possibility of heart attacks if we plan our diet to control blood cholesterol levels; avoid smoking cigarettes; maintain normal weight; exercise regularly and get medical care if we have diabetes or high blood pressure.

Why we should reduce saturated fats and cholesterol.

One authoritative guide put it this way: "The typical American diet is rich in eggs, which are high in cholesterol; and meats, butter, cream and whole milk, which are high in animal (saturated) fats. These foods tend to raise the level of cholesterol in the blood, and a high blood cholesterol level contributes to the development of atherosclerosis, a form of hardening of the arteries. Atherosclerosis is the condition that underlies most attacks."

Why we should substitute polyunsaturates.

Heart specialists warn us that it isn't enough to simply avoid saturated fats such as exist in butter or fatty meats. They say we should also actively seek out polyunsaturates (like you'll find in Mazola Margarine or Mazola Corn Oil). That's because such polyunsaturates actually tend to lower the levels of cholesterol in our blood. In fact, they help the body get rid of excessive amounts of newly formed cholesterol. Think about that.

Mazola tastes good.

Chances are, your family will like Mazola better than whatever you're using now. Because the flavor experts at Mazola have developed a special way of taking good, natural flavor (but none of the butter fat) from butter itself. Then they blend these flavor elements with the good light corn oil in Mazola. Which is why no other margarine matches Mazola's fresh, light, buttery flavor.

What you can do. What we can do.

Since Mazola Margarine is high in polyunsaturates, low in saturated fats, and has no cholesterol whatever, it's just good sense to switch. After all, we can't give you the willpower to lose weight, cut down smoking or take up exercise. But we can give you a good tasting margarine that can be a useful part of your overall heart attack prevention program.

MISS KATHLEEN STELMACH

This morning the engagement of Miss Kathleen Stelmach, daughter of Mrs. Leonard Stelmach of McCook, and the late Mr. Stelmach, to Dennis Bauer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Bauer of Culbertson, is announced by the bride-elect's mother.

The wedding is planned for Saturday, June 2. Miss Stelmach will be graduated in May from the University of Nebraska where she is majoring in elementary education.

Mr. Bauer is a former student at the University of Nebraska and now is employed in Lincoln.

Thoughts Of Spring

Spring may yet be a bit into the future, but thoughts will doubtless turn to spring at the Thursday afternoon, Feb. 8, meeting of Chapter DK, PEO, when Mrs. Dwight McVicker presents the program, which has been entitled "Be Kind To Flowers."

Not only will Mrs. McVicker present the program at the 12:45 o'clock luncheon, but she also will serve as hostess for the regular meeting.

MISS RUTH FINK

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Ruth Fink of Lincoln, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur G. Fink of Pawnee City, to David Gleason Durrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Gleason Durrell of Azusa, Calif., is announced this morning by the bride-elect's parents.

The wedding is planned for Saturday, March 24.

Miss Fink is careering as a secretary with the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. in Lincoln.

Mr. Durrell, who plans a career in music education, now is serving as a musician with the U.S. Navy and is stationed overseas.

Party Honors March Bride-Elect

Easter may be a little late this year (April 22) but the parade of spring brides will start right on time.

One of the early spring weddings will be that of Miss Diana Medina and Patrick Vrtiska which will take place on Saturday, March 24.

And of course Miss Medina will have her share of courtesies. As a matter of fact her party schedule opened last Sunday afternoon when her sister, Mrs. David VanHook was a hostess at her home.

The guest list included members of the families and close friends.

Legal Secretaries

Dr. Anne Campbell of the University of Nebraska will present the program at the Thursday evening, Feb. 8, meeting of the Lincoln Legal Secretaries Association.

Dr. Campbell's topic will be "The Status of Women."

The program will be preceded by a 7 o'clock dinner to be held at the Legionnaire Club, 5730 O St.

Complimenting bride-elect Miss Cecilia Slechta, whose marriage to Frederic Gibb will be solemnized on Saturday, March 3, was Miss Jo Wrigley, who was a party hostess on Monday evening, Jan. 22.

Twelve guests were invited for an informal evening and a miscellaneous shower for the bride-to-be.

Know Your Antiques

This Russian silver samovar was made to serve tea in 1879 by Ovechinnikov. A small teapot was kept on the top of the pot in place of the cover when the tea was brewing.

Ralph and Terry Kovel

Useful kitchen utensils sometimes become such an important part of food service that the utensil develops into a collector's item. The Russians, as well as many Americans, now realize the beauty as well as usefulness of the old brass samovar. They proudly display them in their homes.

The samovar is really a tea-making machine. A tube which held hot charcoal goes down the center. This heats the water in the main kettle part of the samovar. The top of the samovar was made to hold a cup-sized teapot that was filled with very very strong tea. When tea was served, the hostess poured about an inch of tea into the cup and filled the rest with the hot water from the samovar.

The samovar is a Russian invention for the mid-18th century. Tea was introduced from China in the 18th century. Some silver samovars were made by 1875.

These were engraved and decorated with the silver designs that were popular at the time.

Trends in antiques, antiques as investments, and the related problems of buying antiques keep returning to plague the serious collector and the "just-for-fun" collector. Everyone seems to want to own at least one antique. Many beginners are fearful that they will spend foolishly. Old time collectors see pieces going for far more than they would have considered years ago.

Inflation plus supply and demand has changed the entire collecting picture in America during the past 10 years. The major volume of the antique business is of items that are in the middle-price range. Most collectors are not buying or cannot afford the fabulous French furniture of the 18th century or museum quality Tiffany pieces. The collector is younger and has less money to spend in a market that has become more expensive.

What are today's bargains? What are today's overpriced antiques? No type of antique is really overpriced.

This year, most antiques went up in value. English silver had gone down in value, but is now back to its 1968 prices.

Bottles, Depression Glass, and collectors' limited edition pieces are creating the most interest. Usable furniture of any period and colored glassware is popular. A few offbeat items like John Rogers statuary groups and Coca-Cola advertising items have radically increased in price. Nineteenth-century porcelain and American silver have changed very little.

We predict there will still be many bargains. Empire and Victorian furniture of top quality is still not great in demand. Bottles are popular because the collectors are digging them. We feel that paper-labeled bottles will be in special demand in a few years.

Speech Contest

Miss Edith Lumsden and Mrs. Lawrence Wentz were named first and second place winners, respectively, of the Toastmistress Club of Lincoln's third preliminary speech contest which took place at that group's meeting which was held at the Legionnaire Club on Monday evening, Feb. 5.

"In The Genes" was the topic of Miss Lumsden's address, while Mrs. Wentz spoke on "Agape." Also taking part in the contest was Mrs. E. L. Reeker, whose speech was entitled "It Can't Be True."

Mrs. Wentz and Miss Lumsden will be among the six winners to compete in the final club contest on Monday evening, Feb. 19—and the winner of that event will represent the Lincoln group at the council meeting which will be held at Offutt Air Force Base on Saturday, March 24.

Mrs. J. Eyen, contest chairman, served as the evening's toastmistress, and the topicmistress was Mrs. Charles Chace.

Opening lead - queen of diamonds.

Let's say you're in three notrump and West leads the queen of diamonds. If you decide to win and lead a club, there is a chance that East will win with the ace and return a diamond, establishing his partner's suit. If it then turns out that West has the ace of spades, as well as five diamonds, you will eventually go down one, losing three diamonds and two black aces.

To prevent this, you duck the queen of diamonds, hoping in this way to interfere with enemy communications. West then plays the jack of diamonds and, for precisely the same reason, you duck again!

It is, of course, unusual to duck twice with a double stopper, but it is surely the right play in this hand. If West leads still another diamond, you win it and attack clubs. As it happens, East wins with the ace, but, as a direct result of your first two plays, he does not have a diamond to return.

The best he can do is lead a spade, which you lose to the ace, but there are no more tricks for the defense — and you make three notrump.

Now let's suppose you had won the first or second diamond lead and attacked clubs. In that case, the outcome would depend on how the black aces were situated. As the cards actually lie, East would take the ace, return a diamond, and you would wind up with only eight tricks.

Strange as it seems, the best way of playing the hand is to duck the first two diamond leads. This assures the contract, unless West has both black aces as well as long diamonds — in which case you cannot make the contract whatever you do. The double duck greatly reduces the element of luck.

POSTCARD

Stan

One rainy Sunday I sorted out a box of photos and there, frozen in sepia print, was my grandmother. Her hair is parted in the middle. Drawn back tight—her mouth is firmly closed.

She looks as if she were about to say: "Wash those hands before you come to the table, dear."

I guess it's all right for me to sort pictures on Sunday. Sunday was a day of rest.

But—"The better the day, the better the deed," grandma said when she stuffed the chicken.

This is the season of national weeks and months. When a press agent wants space for his client, he has the product listed in a national month.

Car Care Month is coming up. You would think that was framed up by the insurance people. People who keep their cars shined up are less apt to dent them and ask the insurance people for money.

Not so. I find Car Care Month is to promote baking soda. They advise you to buy baking soda and wash your car with it.

It will soon be Day of Workers Solidarity in Bulgaria. Don't miss it.

Religion was woven deep in the culture of those sleepy little towns down in Illinois. People lived by the Scriptures, word for word.

The racier chapters of the Old Testament were discussed as though they'd happened in the next county. Might come to court next week.

You didn't do real work on Sunday. Everybody agreed that such work was against the will of the Almighty.

If you were a boy, you couldn't go skylarking around the barn.

But you couldn't go out and watch your uncle milk the cows. The cats stood around meowing for spilled milk. Our uncle would point the cow's faucet at them. Send a squirt of milk in the air.

The cats stood on their hind legs. They caught it without getting a drop on their chins. Those were the days!

I find some of the National Days fall on Sunday. Not sure grandma would have approved of that.

Certain work had to be done. Like milking cows. Feeding the chickens. But Sunday was a day of sober thought.

Church in the morning. "Fine sermon, Reverend," said my grandfather. In the evening we sat around while he read a chapter from the Bible.

The Old Testament got most of the action. Blood - and - thunder parts. "An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth."

Grim warnings from The Book showed you eternal damnation is closer than you think.

The preacher opened his Bible. He looked on us sternly. Everybody settled down for a good hour of brimstone. Grandma like that part.

The preacher said: "What does this lesson tell us. It tells us that the Devil is waiting!

Waiting for miserable sinners to tumble into his net."

Grandma had her eye on a lot of sinners. "Headed for the hot place if I know anything," she said.

Most sinners drank. That's how you could tell them.

"I could name them if I'd a mind to it," said grandma. "Except it'd be an un-Christian thing to do."

When I was older, there was a new preacher. A younger man. He laughed some and made light remarks.

Grandma said she reckoned he meant all right. "But it don't seem godly for a preacher to crack jokes."

She advised me to toe the straight and narrow. "Remember Satan's a wart!" she said.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast for Wednesday

Welcome a Sagittarian and the response could be. Now let's sit down and do this, the right way once and for all. Natives of this sign can be wary of contracts, suspicious of persons and subjects until they get to know them. After that, Sagittarius is apt to be as a babe in the woods trusting, accepting and naive. Some famous Sagittarians include Edward G. Robinson, Sammy Davis Jr., Jane Fonda and Lee Trevino.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) L. Unhinged stance now actually proves most productive. Ride. Socialize. Leave details for another time. There are obstacles and it is best to go around rather than over them. You will comprehend Sagittarian could play key role.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Study Aries message. Don't expect too much now and you won't be disappointed. Relatives are confused but sincere. Know it and avoid needless conflict. Take special care while in traffic. Check calls, messages.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Avoid extravagant gestures. Give log equal time with impulse. Some changes are in order, but they need not be rushed or inspired by panic. Member of our posse sex is not passive about feelings. Understand and be mature.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) You have all problems now as if they were made to order. Means cycle is high and you are at right place at right time. Key is confidence, forthright attitude. State case. Let others know you do know score. Taurus, Libra persons are involved.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22) Stand back and take stock. Someone may be trying to sell you bill of goods. Insist on verification of facts. Discard rumors. Avoid wishful thinking. Look behind scenes. You could become romantically involved with one who flashes brilliant eyes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't mix money and friendship. Study Leo message. Be realistic about responsibilities. Relationships with on possible sex intensify. Reward due from past efforts. Older and wiser. Perhaps Capricorn plays prominent role.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Some things have to be removed and replaced. This includes material objects, concepts. Your quick shift. One who actually will be doing what is constructive. Aquarian in picture. Money question needs further probing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) New approach results in greater opportunity. One who seemed indifferent actually cares now—very much. Know it and respond accordingly. Accent is on your philosophy, your overall concepts, your real desires.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You are drawn between practicality and romantic notion. Follow inner feelings. Be true to yourself. Follow a through on punch you actually will be doing what is constructive. Aquarian in picture. Money question needs further probing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Lie low. Don't push too hard. Mate partner has right to express definite view. Know it and act. Let it go now. If those who have authority seem determined to create problems. Be diplomatic enough to seek allies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Low-key approach now is best for you. Check sources. Remove contacts. But make no specific demand. Get a calm, mated. Scorpio can play key role. Follow through on appointments. Don't skip exercise, schedule.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) One who has been pretending is likely to make friends. Be ready for change. Travel variety. Where there is a flurry. Gemini. Virgo persons are in picture. Romance is on horizon.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you will be feeling more secure at home. You are capable of a natural ex. exclusive and you possess a powerful and determination. June. You'll be one of your most important months of 1973.

Catholic Women Pass Resolution Approving Intent Of The Equal Rights Amendment

The Lincoln Star 23
Wednesday, Feb. 7, 1973

A resolution approving the intent of the Equal Rights Amendment passed with little comment at the Lincoln Diocesan Council of Catholic Women Tuesday.

However the group of more than 50 women from the 13 deaneries in southern Nebraska did not specifically call for approval of the amendment itself.

The trend toward large corporation-controlled farms and its threat to the present agricultural system was explained by Father John J. McRaith, co-director of the Rural Life Conference in Des Moines Iowa, during the afternoon session.

"This is all the land we're going to have and what happens to that land is very important," said Father McRaith. "Once they (corporations) get it they are not going to give it up," he noted.

The dangers of corporation ownership are higher food prices as competition lessens and even a lack of food because of strikes or corporate greed for profits, an empty rural America as farm families move to urban centers and the entry of the underworld into agriculture.

The alternatives to the present family farmer system with its open market are huge cooperatives, contract arrangements with corporations or outright corporation land ownership, said Father McRaith.

Rural Americans must begin now to retain the family farmer, he said.

While agreeing that some discrimination against women exists in employment and through some state laws Mrs. Robert Crosby, chairman of the ERA Amendment Study Committee, pointed out that respect and equality for women can not necessarily be legislated.

"If everyone lived as Christians and practiced respect for each other, then we wouldn't need an ERA," she said.

"Our consensus is that we approve the intent of the ERA. However the method of achieving equality under the law for women is questioned, and we believe could be improved upon," read the resolution, prepared by a Lincoln deanery study committee.

Much Being Spent Much time and money are being spent on the current dispute which could be used in a more positive and fruitful way to enhance women's position in this country.

Legislation alone will not automatically give equality to women. We must work for what we get, and a case by case journey through the courts might be just as lucrative in benefits as the amendment."

"We feel the extremists on both sides are hurting the real issue, which after all, is whether or not we are going to go forward and learn to live together or regress and live in isolation," the resolution concluded.

Others on the study committee appointed by Lincoln Deanery President Mrs. Roy Louder were Mrs. Edward Pratt and Mrs. Wayne Rowe.

Teter Urges Alternatives To Dry Wet Grain

In view of fuel shortages and larger corn harvests grain dryer dealers should consider offering farmers alternative systems of storing high moisture grain Prof. Norman C. Teter told those registered for the University of Nebraska grain drying workshop here.

"It's foolish to insist on drying as fast as you harvest," Teter said. "It requires too much power and often results in over-drying the grain and a loss in revenue," he added.

Salesmen, designers and developers were invited to test the performance of their grain dryers using a computer model developed by the NU Agricultural Engineering Department.

However Teter suggested they also consider the advantages of other systems such as the horizontal silo and acid treatments.

Acid will do a lot to preserve but is expensive, corrosive to metal bins and requires great care in application, he said.

The horizontal silo, if properly covered and managed, can also reduce spoilage of high moisture corn used for feed, Teter explained.

He also mentioned a system which would allow farmers to dry grain to a certain point, then move it to storage bins aerated by natural air to prevent spoilage until the farmer had the necessary fuel or capacity to finish drying it.

In discussing types of dryers, optimum conditions are hard to determine, said Dr. T. L. Thompson, NU agricultural engineer. It's a matter of compromising grain quality, efficiency and capacity when developing a system, he added.

In determining the cost of running a drying system, the operator need to consider depreciation costs, fixed costs (costs simply of running the system) and variable costs (which vary with the amount of grain and hours of operation) said Dr. P. W. Lytle, agricultural economist.

For example costs per bushel can be reduced if the system is run more hours every day, if it can be used for more days during the drying season if harvest is delayed until there is less grain moisture or if a higher temperature is used, he said.

Omaha Items To So. Vietnam

Omaha (P)—More than 5,580 pounds of donated "survival items" for the children in South Vietnam's Tan Binh Orphanage were trucked out of Omaha Monday, bound for San Diego, Calif.

The goods will be loaded aboard a Navy ship which will transport them to Vietnam.

Car Shortage Resolution Reported Out

Washington (P)—A resolution by U.S. Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., and other members of the Senate Agriculture Committee requesting specific action to help alleviate the current freight car shortage has been reported out by a Senate subcommittee.

The resolution expresses "the sense of the Senate" that:

—The secretary of agriculture should impose a moratorium on the disposal of grain owned by the government and that the moratorium should be continued until it can be lifted without causing a new transportation crisis.

—The option to reseed loans on farm-stored wheat and feed grains should be made available to farmers by the Commodity Credit Corp with respect to the 1970, 1971 and 1972 crops.

—The President should immediately appoint a special committee to conduct a study of the railroad freight car shortage problem and the study should be submitted to the President and Congress within 30 days.

Italian Presence Declines

Asmara, Ethiopia (AP) Chianti corks pop softly in the dining room of the Albergo Italia on Sunday nights, beneath gilt mirrors and baroque plaster ornaments recalling Italy's classical past.

Italian men suit jackets but toned and mazers stiff with middle-aged dignity, join to steaming plates of veal and mozzarella. The hotel proprietor beams and conversation flows with the wine. It could be Milan or Naples, except for the Ethiopian waiters.

Life can be sweet in Asmara, a little Italy near the Red Sea, but few Italians remain to enjoy it. Some 4,000 Italians are left in Eritrea province compared with 60,000 after World War II.

A gradual decline in the Italian presence in northern and eastern Africa has speeded up since 1970. Less than 90 years after colonizers from Rome joined in the European rush to the continent, Libya expelled 3,000 Italians and confiscated their property. Somalia is chipping away with measures restricting activities of hundreds of Italian missionaries, teachers and businessmen.

Gentler, Voluntary
Disengagement in Eritrea has been gentler — and largely voluntary. Italians have not been expelled like Asians in Uganda or suffered loss of trading licenses, as the Asians in Kenya have. Many have taken advantage of subsidies offered to returning citizens by Italian governments apparently fearful that a Libya-like situation might eventually arise.

Some Italian businessmen accuse the Ethiopian bureaucracy of deliberately making life difficult. But red tape is a problem for Ethiopian entrepreneurs, too, and big Italian businesses, like Fiat, are going strong.

Ethiopian officials say they're sorry to lose the skills of Italians who work as farmers and in a variety of blue-collar jobs.

"The environment here is mixed," an Italian commented. "The Ethiopians don't really want us but most of the country has not had the experience of being colonized, so they don't feel a compulsion to kick us out."

Italians In Capital
In Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital, the Italian population has increased to several thousand as commerce developed. In Asmara, the country's second city, Italians find reasons to leave. "I can't stand it here. There's nothing to do," said Riccardo Coppola, a slender 16-year-old who studied dramatics in Italy. He's returning to Rome soon with the permission of his widowed mother, who runs a gasoline station in Asmara.

Young Italians, bored by the usual round of dances, movies and nightclubs, say they're going to Italy to seek excitement and opportunity. Even Giuseppe, an aging opera-singing hairdresser, tells his women customers between arias that he is thinking of emigrating to America, where he has relatives.

For one Asmara-born Italian the answer wasn't Italy. Mario Ascar, 28, a commercial designer, came back to Asmara in 1971.

I decided to study advertising in Milan, with the idea of staying in Europe," he says. "Italy turned out to be so dirty, so disgusting that I came back. You know, you can do many things in advertising in this country. It is a virgin field."

On the surface, Asmara is about as Italian as it ever was. The city of 200,000 has two Italian newspapers and a half dozen Italian-language schools. Although Amharic and English are the officially used languages in Ethiopia, here you buy medicine at a pharmacy and groceries at a shop labeled groceries in Amharic.

Cathedral Is Catholic
A Roman Catholic cathedral, not an Ethiopian Orthodox church, dominates the peaceful main street. Italian families still keep villas. In Asmara, Eritrea, it is on port. They buy imported Italian shoes, costing the equivalent of $24 in Asmara, for $20.

A black American Peace Corps worker, surveying the Sunday night Italian dinner at the Albergo Italia, displayed some new-found knowledge of local politics. "These people won't be here much longer," she confided to an acquaintance at the next table.

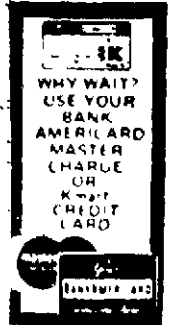

Maybe — but the Menghetis plan to remain.

"We were born here. The Ethiopians don't want us to go. If I go to Italy, I am a stranger and America is 57,000 miles from the three brothers who operate the hotel."

The Albergo Italia, built in 1899, is one of the oldest buildings in Asmara. It has been in the Menghetis family from the start.

School Subject 'Death'

Lewistown, Ohio (UPI) — Sparked by a high-geared public relations campaign of funeral home directors, the subject of death has been integrated into a local high school's curriculum.

Teachers and students say they like the program. Funeral home directors are trying to sell their "death" course to more schools in the state and the nation.

Worried about adverse publicity from books and articles depicting the high cost of funerals, the National Funeral Directors Association has undertaken a public service program to help out young people better understand death and what effort it can have on themselves and society.

The campaign has taken the form of funeral directors approaching high school principals and making them put a local funeral home director, Lee Van Horn, in the curriculum.

Van Horn is successful at the 60th student Indian Lake High School here, and school officials are happy with the results.

Activity Book
He provided the school with a student activity book for the course.

The booklet is filled with questions and projects on items such as death in poetry, thoughts of famous persons on death and even a crossword puzzle — called a "deathword puzzle" — using the vocabulary of death.

The booklet also suggests that students answer questions like: How has the funeral home been designed and planned for the comfort and convenience of the bereaved? List the things that are done for the family by the funeral director. And: How have your attitudes changed toward funeral homes and funeral directors?

Mrs. Marion Hemphill, an English teacher, worked the death program into her 15-student English composition class last semester and plans to do the same with her 22-student creative writing class this semester.

Writing Projects
The composition class used death as a foundation for writing projects over a six-week period. Doctors, ministers, lawyers and funeral home directors came into the classroom to speak about death. Field trips were taken to funeral homes.

The best speaker was Mr. Van Horn, said 17-year-old student Craig Conley. "He's lived in a funeral home — in an atmosphere of death — and he knew what he was talking about. Our best project was going to a funeral home and seeing the caskets laid out, learning about the prices of funerals."

From what I learned, I don't think funeral homes make a big profit. We were told the average funeral costs about $800 and I don't think they make much profit.

Conley said the project was very worthwhile. "Until last semester I'd always had a fear of death. I guess because I didn't know much about it," he said. "This has helped me understand death better and now I tell my parents things they didn't know."

Rural Schools
Conley said he felt the program would be especially good for rural schools.

Big city kids have death all around them every day, but out here we don't hear it too much about death.

Mrs. Hemphill said the project was beneficial.

It helped the kids get rid of their fears and it's a good experience in school to get into something new and different, she said.

Mrs. Hemphill said she realized the initial reason for the program may have been to put funeral home directors in a good light.

I don't feel we were being used though, because we got so much benefit from it," she said. "It brought a very serious subject out into the open."

More Valid

Nick Papa, of Columbus, public relations consultant for a State Funeral Directors Organization, said the program was more valid for schools than a project that might be promoted by other special interest groups, such as manufacturers or a restaurant owners' association.

Not everyone goes to a restaurant or buys a product, Papa said, but everybody dies. Therefore, this subject should be important to everyone.

To drum up more publicity about the death course and try to get the subject into more schools, Papa is bringing Mrs. Hemphill, Conley and another student to Columbus for a news conference.

A college professor, Dr. David Barr of Northern Illinois University, also is on hand to discuss the merits of putting death in school curriculums.

The news conference will be staged in conjunction with a state meeting of funeral home directors.

Victim Says Mob Not Like Godfather

By MARK SCHEINBAUM

Miami Beach (UPI) — Fred Arthur says he knows what the mob is all about, and it's not what you saw in "The Godfather."

He's at the other end of the glamorous end of the scale from the high-living barons of organized crime. He says he might call on his own book, "The Victim."

It has been 16 months since his last encounter with the mob, and Fred Arthur, 43, still spends most of his day in bed. He had only a small abrasion on his head when the four men finished with him, but inside his spleen was burst and his liver nearly torn loose. A doctor gave him 20 minutes to live.

Arthur keeps a little piece of wire in a test tube by his bed. Doctors used the wire to hold his spleen and liver together, but it didn't work. He found the piece of wire sticking out of his chest one day, and he had to have four more operations.

A Little Vengeance
Arthur hopes to gain a little vengeance when he testifies at the coming trial on racketeering charges of the four men charged with beating him up in his Miami nightclub, long since closed, and four other alleged hoods.

He also hopes to help push for legislation which would give the victims of crime some of the protection he sees the criminals getting—free care in police hospital wards, clothing, food, an attorney, prison education to teach them a trade, and rehabilitation programs.

Arthur says he is staying alive and supporting his wife and four children on $58 a week in Workmen's Compensation, plus help from relatives. He lives in an expensive section of Miami Beach, but his home shows the tatters of neglect.

Policeman's Son
Fred Arthur came here from Brooklyn 20 years ago. He and his brother were bartenders and the sons of a vice squad policeman. They had seen plenty of punks, knew about the underworld, but, Fred says, "It never really sinks in."

Arthur went into the construction business, did well, drove a Cadillac convertible, and when he had the chance to be a partner in renovating a nightclub that had gone out of business, he grabbed it because he had always had a vision of himself as a suave host to big-name people.

"He thought he was getting into something like a Hollywood movie," said his wife Helen, sitting on the edge of his bed, "then he met the creeps of the night."

The Justice Department's organized crime strike force in Miami says the trouble started over a cigarette machine, one left over from the old club. When Arthur and his brother, Sheldon, opened their supper club in Miami—"Oliver's"—they let the machine stay, but it was owned by one mob faction and a rival faction wanted the brothers to substitute its machine. Fred said he told them, "drop dead."

Bootleg Cigarettes
According to strike force investigators the machines are lucrative because the mob uses them to dispense untaxed bootleg cigarettes.

Oliver's opened late in 1970 and quickly became an "in" spot for show people and celebrities, but also a hangout for racket figures. They ran up liquor and food tabs as high as $1,500 and left Fred to sign for them.

When they still refused to come around, according to the federal charges, Fred and his brother were badly beaten. Fred told them a second time, "drop dead."

Men Came Again
In September, the men came again, late at night. The way Fred tells it, "one guy grabbed my hands while two others worked me over. The fourth guy I don't think stayed with them. When I went down, I saw they were demolishing the place—chairs, the bar, everything."

My barmaid pulled a gun and fired two quick shots at them. I think it's the only reason they left."

It was in a hospital emergency room that a doctor X-rayed Fred and told him, "you've got 20 minutes, that's all."

Fred recovered, but is only back to part-time work as a building consultant. "Oliver's" never opened again.

Afraid of FBI
Fred says, "I should have gone to the FBI when that business over the cigarette machine started—you just mention the word 'Feds' to these guys and they're shaking."

He aches when he reads about the success of "The Godfather," and "The Valachi Papers," now playing down the street from his house.

"You learn to live with pain, but not with the way the public is apathetic about the mob," says Arthur. "They think it's glamor when it's not. They support a society which gives food and shelter to the criminals but leaves the victims with nothing."

He says he will make it back—"I don't know how, but I will."

And the lesson he has learned, he says, is "The first time somebody even looks at me cock-eyed, I go to the FBI."

Erotic Club Closes

Toronto (AP) — The Mynah Bird, an erotic night club, closed so the owners could open a nudist club. Mynah Bird attractions ranged from topless dancers and sex movies to a chef who cooked in the buff except for a chef's hat, which is required by law.

3 Are Named To Drug Board

Dr. Allan Roehl of Scottsbluff, Dr. Lee Gustafson of Beatrice and Charles Herd of Omaha were named Tuesday to membership on the Nebraska Drug Commission.

Gov. J. James Exon announced the appointments to fill vacancies created by the resignations recently of Dr. Ann Czerwinski of Omaha, Dr. Jack Anderson of Lincoln and E. K. Yanney of Lodgepole.

New Date Backed For Primaries

... BILL GIVEN TO COMMITTEE

By United Press International
A bill which as amended would move the date of the Nebraska primary elections in non-presidential years from May to September was favorably received in the Legislature Tuesday—but was eventually referred to a committee for another public hearing.

The measure, LB174, sponsored by Sen. Gerald Stromer of Kearney, originally proposed that Nebraska have an all-star vice presidential primary to go with its presidential primary.

It was Sen. J. James Waldron of Callaway who significantly revised the proposal with an amendment to move the primary date from spring to fall in those years when voters are not balloting in presidential races.

Lengthy Campaigns
Many of the lawmakers were in complete agreement with Waldron when he said there is "absolutely no reason" for stretching campaigns from March to November.

Sen. Gary Anderson of Axtell said he was "enthusiastically endorsing" the bill, both in its original and amended form, but that the public deserved a chance to testify before further legislative action.

Also in support was Sen. Richard Pellman of Omaha, humorous note that "the one great advantage" of holding primaries in May is that the long time lag between elections allows "a time for healing from campaign fights."

"I don't care about healing wounds, was the reaction of Omaha's Sen. George Syas. "But I do know the people are pretty upset about campaigns going from March to November."

Speedy Action Sought
Trying to get the Legislature to act immediately was Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff. "We won't know any more after a public hearing than we do now," he objected when a motion was made by Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan to have a hearing.

Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha, unicameral speaker, said the bill as changed included "a more or less revolutionary and a completely new element" and should go back to committee.

But he hesitated to ask to get the measure sent back. When asked why he smilingly replied: "If I make the motion, I could be overruled by 25 votes and I would suffer the indignity of being over-ruled." He added that if the senators voted on Maresh's motion, he would avoid the problem.

Maresh's motion carried, 28-7.

Filing Fee Rejected
The vote on changing the primary dates was approved, 30-7, but an attempt by Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island to force vice presidential candidates to pay a filing fee of $100 was rejected, 12-20.

In speaking for his bill, Stromer said he feels it is time to give people a chance to express themselves on a presidential candidate's running mate, rather than having "party bosses" making the decision.

He said only New Hampshire gives its residents such a choice and that the Midwest "has always been a pioneering area" as far as presidential primaries are concerned.

New Lease-Purchase Limit For Schools Hit

By United Press International
The Legislature adjourned and left hanging Tuesday a bill which opponents charged was an attempt to undermine local control over school boards.

"School districts want only one thing — money without limitation," said Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff in opposing LB197.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. George Syas of Omaha, would allow all local school boards in the state to enter into lease-purchase agreements of up to 10 years, instead of the present five, for buildings and equipment.

Original Limit

The bill, as originally drafted, would have raised the limit to 20 years. But a floor amendment lowered the limit to 10.

Pending upon adjournment was a Carpenter motion to limit the bill, which was up for initial consideration, to only the Omaha School District.

Also pending behind Carpenter's motion was a bill motion offered by Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island, who said the bill was an attempt to get around bond issues, which require a ballot decision.

"If the people of Omaha want this, that's fine," Carpenter said in offering his motion. "There's no reason why Omaha can't build a $25 million school building under this bill if they want. But in Scottsbluff—no."

Bond Issues
Carpenter also agreed that the measure appeared to be an attempt to get around bond issue procedures.

"All we're saying in this bill is that if you (the voters) don't vote bonds, then here's a way around that," he said.

"In other words, by adopting this bill and others like it, pretty soon we'll have eliminated the right of people to express themselves," he said.

Syas, however, said the measure was intended to provide school districts with greater managerial flexibility, and was not intended as an invitation to liberties.

Intent Questioned
Sen. Herb Nore of Genoa said the intent, no matter how good, may not be the right reason for adopting the bill.

"The intent might be good, but it might last only until we get the bill passed," he said.

He also noted that the original section of law which would be amended by the measure has a five-year limit on such lease-purchase agreements.

"What that limitation was put in there, I think it was put there for the very reasons brought out here today," Nore said.

Measure Advanced To Aid Multihandicapped Children

By The Associated Press
Nebraska's Legislature declared itself Tuesday in favor of state financing of the costs of medical treatment and education of multihandicapped children.

The principle was contained indirectly in an amended version of Omaha Sen. John Savage's LB102, which lawmakers advanced from general file 33-0 in its first floor test.

Savage said the bill gives statement impetus to a pilot program successfully carried on in Omaha the past two years.

A series of amendments, making mandatory rather than optional the state's involvement, were offered by Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter and adopted on a voice vote.

Carpenter expressed hope that the Legislature will follow through by providing the needed money, but noted: "We've got a habit in the Legislature of authorizing but never funding."

At one stage, Carpenter proposed to delete a provision which permits sending multihandicapped children to out-of-state treatment centers. He said Nebraska should provide its own services. But at the urging of Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln, the out-of-state option was restored.

Road Fund Impoundment Attacked

The Nebraska Legislature Tuesday was asked to go on record in opposition to a Nixon administration decision to impound $5 billion in highway trust funds.

The Legislature was also asked to support a challenge to the action by the state of Missouri.

The proposal was contained in Resolution 13, sponsored by Sen. William Hasebroeck. It was laid over for later consideration.

The federal impoundment action has resulted "in a seriously detrimental effect on state road construction programs," the resolution said.

The resolution would also oppose plans to divert the money from road construction to mass transit.

Neo-Natal Intensive Care Facility Will Treat Infant Flown To Lincoln

A Lexington baby was listed in "serious" condition at St. Elizabeth Health Center Tuesday night after it was rushed from a North Platte hospital when it developed breathing difficulty.

Dr. L. Bausch and nurses Mrs. Elodie Thompson and Mrs. Shiela Ecklund flew on a private jet to North Platte to pick up the baby and returned to Lincoln. A National Guard helicopter was used to transfer the baby to the hospital.

A hospital spokesman said the baby was taken to St. Elizabeth Health Center because it has one of the two neo-natal intensive care units in the state.

The spokesman said the unit is staffed with specially trained personnel and highly sophisticated equipment for the treatment of critically ill infants is available.

The unnamed baby is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Knocker of Lexington.

Proxmire Offers Counter-Budget

(c) Washington Star-News

Washington — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., Tuesday proposed a "counter-budget" cutting federal spending next fiscal year about $4 billion below President Nixon's projections.

The net reduction from Nixon's estimate of $268.7 billion to $265 billion of expenditures in the year starting July 1 can be achieved while "restoring money for programs now starved for funds," Proxmire said in a speech prepared for the Senate.

He recommended cutting $10 billion from the President's spending projections for some programs and increasing outlays for other programs by $8 billion.

Proxmire proposed reducing

Nixon's spending estimates by $5 billion for defense, $3 billion for foreign aid, $1 billion for highways, $500 million for space and $500 million for public works.

He said spending should be increased above the Nixon budget by $6 billion for low-income housing, agriculture, mass transit, manpower training and the environment.

Proxmire offered his counter-budget as the President's Council of Economic Advisers defended Nixon's policies at the start of annual hearings before the Senate-House Economic Committee on the administration's economic report. Proxmire is vice-chairman of the joint committee.

Hearing Set On Proposed Charges By Parks Board

The Park and Recreation Board will hold a public hearing at 3 p.m. Thursday on proposed fees and charges for recreation programs at the department's office, 2740 A.

A subcommittee is proposing the following fee schedules:

—Youth class fees will be based upon 80% of the cost of instruction and material furnished for the class.

—Adult class fees will be based upon 80% of the cost of class instruction and materials.

Both youth and adult fees will be computed on a basis of minimum class size.

—The proposed team entry fee will be based upon the cost of officials and trophies for league play.

In the past, team entry fees paid about 45% of the cost, according to Recreation Superintendent Dick Leker.

The O Street Recreation Center announced it will hold a photography class, with access to darkroom facilities, on Tuesday evenings from 7-9 p.m. beginning Feb. 13. The adult class will last 10 weeks.

Urbom Temporarily Bars Merger Of Iowa Beef With Missouri Beef

U.S. District Court Judge Warren Urbom Tuesday issued an order temporarily barring a proposed merger of the Iowa Beef Processors with Missouri Beef Packers.

The order came in connection with a suit filed by American Beef Packers which contends that the proposed merger of the two firms violates antitrust laws.

Urbom issued the order in conjunction with other orders, allowing extra time for taxing depositions from Iowa Beef.

The order, which bars the proposed merger until the court has passed upon the American Beef request for a preliminary injunction against the merger, also bars Iowa Beef from "entering into any agreement to merge" with Missouri Beef.

According to the suit, Iowa Beef, of Dakota City, Neb., is the largest slaughterer of federally-inspected fed cattle in the nation. Missouri Beef of Amarillo, Texas, the fifth largest and American Beef, of Omaha, the third largest.

2 Hallam Youths Are Held After Farmer Robbed

Two Hallam youths were being held Tuesday night in connection with the robbery of Frank Beckman of rural Hallam, according to the Lancaster County Sheriff's office.

Deputies said Beckman reported that the pair, both age 15, were wearing ski masks when they came to his farm northwest of Hallam Tuesday evening, threatened him with a .22 caliber rifle and took $17 and his car.

The car was later spotted in Wilbur by a Wilbur police officer who followed it until it went into a ditch southwest of town.

The two youths fled on foot into a field where they were finally located by the deputies.

Woman Killed In Mishap West Of Bridgeport

Bridgeport, Neb. (AP) — A 55-year-old Scottsbluff woman Mrs. Alfred Mikkelsen, died in a car-truck collision early Tuesday evening on State Highway 92 about six miles west of Bridgeport.

The State Patrol said she was a passenger in a car driven by Devita Beals, 34, of Scottsbluff. The Patrol said the Beals auto went out of control and slid into the path of a semi-truck driven by Lloyd Cheesman, 50, of Oaktown, Ind.

Mrs. Beals and three other passengers in her car were taken to local hospitals. Late Tuesday evening, Mrs. Beals was reported in good condition as were her children, Steven Beals, 14, and Lisa Beals, 16 months-old. The victim's husband, Alfred, 54, was listed in satisfactory condition. The trucker was not injured.

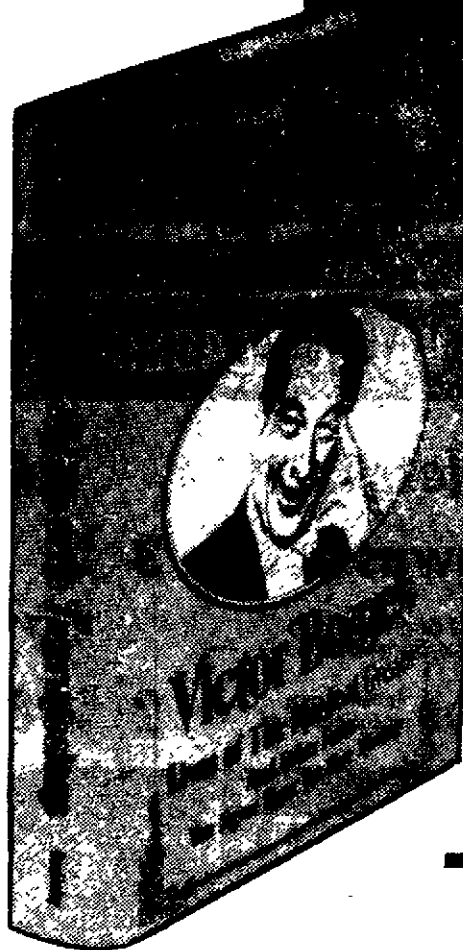

The death raised the Nebraska 1973 fatality toll to 39, compared with 27 on this date a year ago.

3.7 Million Miles Of Roads, Streets

Washington — Roads and streets in the United States totaled over 3.7 million miles at the start of 1972, the Transportation Department reports. The total includes 583,047 miles of municipal roads and streets and 3.1 million miles of rural roads.

Where's UCLA Scout?

Sports writers and broadcasters arriving in the press area for Monday night's Nebraska-Colo. basketball game at the NU Coliseum did a double-take at the seating assignments.

Taking a grin and bear it attitude over the woeful showings being put on by the Husker cagers, NU sports information director Don Bryant and his chief aide Tom Simons had marked off seats for a UCLA scout, the Los Angeles Times, New York Times, Chicago Tribune and Sports Illustrated.

To save you the chore of phoning to ask, we thought the steaks served at the Monday noon Rebounders Club luncheon were excellent as is always the case with Bob Logsdon's spot on East O.

The most apt description of what's plaguing the NU basketball team comes from KFOR's Bill Wood, who allows, "There may be room in basketball for the little guy, but not room for five of them."

New Husker head football coach Tom Osborne has laid down a hard-line policy in at least one area for his NU gridders.

Osborne has warned them that one thing he will refuse to tolerate is any messing around with drugs, an act that will bring automatic suspension with no ifs, ands or buts allowed.

Just Sign It Johnny Rodgers

When former Nebraska quarterback Jerry Tagge returned to Lincoln recently after his rookie season with the Green Bay Packers, he was greeted by a horde of youngsters seeking autographs.

After working his way through most of them, Tagge found the 6-year-old daughter of Lincolnite Ray Gottner waiting patiently.

When Tagge asked what she would like written on her sheet of paper, she responded, "Oh, I was hoping for somebody important. Could you sign it Johnny Rodgers?"

One of the celebrities the Nebraska party had the privilege of spending some time with a couple of months during the three days of Heisman Trophy activities in New York City was National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle, whose first question was, "How's John Lee doing?"

Lee is a big lineman the Huskers recruited a year ago from New Jersey. "After all the flack I took in a 30-minute phone call from the Colorado coach, I hope he makes good for you."

CU coach Eddie Crowder complained to Rozelle that Buddy Young, a member of Rozelle's staff, had been influential in swinging Lee to choose Nebraska.

Sport Names Glover

Nebraska middle guard Rich Glover has been named College Football Player of the Year by Sport Magazine in its annual issue naming the top performer in each sport.

Eleven coaches during the 1972 football season were in their first year as head mentors and only four of them came up with winning rookie seasons.

Winners in their first year were Earle Bruce, 9-2 at Tampa; Dave Smith, 6-5 at Oklahoma State; LaVell Edwards, 7-4 at Brigham Young; and Chester Caddas, 8-3 at Pacific.

First year losers were Jack Christiansen, 4-6 at Stanford; Mike White, 3-8 at California; Dick Egnart, 4-7 at Oregon; Emory Ballard, 3-8 at Texas A & M; Tom Harper, 2-9 at Wake Forest; and Tom Cecchini, 3-8 at Xavier; while Al Conover at Rice broke even at 5-5-1.

—SENIOR GETS 33 REBOUNDS—

Renken Peps NWU Past Concordia

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Seward — Nebraska Wesleyan's Mike Renken may have reached an ultimate goal.

The Geneva senior grabbed 33 rebounds here Tuesday night as the Plainsmen took a 79-51 Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference win over Concordia.

A quick check reveals Renken's effort is more than likely a Nebraska state college record.

Renken also broke his own school record of 30, which he set earlier this season and tied Saturday in a game against Doane.

Against the Bulldogs Renken had 15 rebounds in the first half.

"I had good position most of the time and had some rebounds just come my way," Renken said. "When I get this many rebounds in a game, I've got to be lucky and have some bounce my way."

Renken was helped by the fact that Concordia was extremely cold from the field, 10 of 45 (22.2 per cent) in the first half and 22 of 84 (26.2 per cent) for the game.

"We had some good shots, especially in the first half," Concordia coach Bob Baden said.

"But, we just couldn't score and when a team has that kind of trouble, it'll have an awful tough time winning a game."

While the Bulldogs were having trouble scoring the Plainsmen fared better.

NWU made 17 of 40 field goals in the first half (42.5 per cent) and 35 of 84 in the game (41.7 per cent). The Plainsmen also out rebounded the Bulldogs, 70-56, although Concordia had a 35-32 halftime edge.

NWU scored first and never trailed in picking up win No. 4 in the NIAC against two losses.

Grabs 33 Rebounds

The Capital City team is now 11-9 overall, while Concordia dropped to 1-5 in the NIAC and 5-13 overall. The win gave the Plainsmen a sweep over the Bulldogs this season.

Concordia went from 15:38 remaining in the first half to 10:56 without scoring, while NWU was reeling off 14 and breaking from an 8-6 margin.

Baden's team made an attempted rally in the second half by closing from 52-23 to 54-37 from 15:09 left to 10:07.

However, the Plainsmen pushed to a 73-47 lead with 2:45 to go, putting the game out of reach.

'Favored' Nicklaus Eyes First Hope Classic Win

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus holds his customary spot as the man to beat in the marathon Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic—but big Jack isn't the overwhelming, top-heavy favorite he usually is.

For some reason, he doesn't play particularly well in this 90-hole five-day event that gets underway Wednesday. It's one of the few old, established tournaments that he hasn't won in his fantastic career.

The 33-year-old Golden Bear, the all-time leading money winner and 1972 player of the year, has let it be known he doesn't particularly care for tournaments played over more than one course—and this one features four different desert layouts in and around this resort center.

But he has more than his share of plusses going. He's coming off a week's rest and won the last time out, taking the title in the Bing Crosby— which, incidentally, was played on three courses. And the length of this one works to his advantage.

"The longer the tournament, the more holes you play, the more it favors the good player," Nicklaus said after a practice round over Bermuda Dunes, the headquarters course and the site of Sunday's final round.

"It's simple, anything could happen on one hole. The more holes you play, the more chance the ability of the good player has to show itself."

And, too, there's his incredible record. He's won eight of his last 20 domestic starts—a record unmatched in recent years on the pro tour. He won an incredible $320,000 in prize money last year.

Arrayed against him is a field that includes most of the game's outstanding names, including four-time Hope champion Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper, Lee Trevino and Doug Sanders, on off-time playing companion of Vice President Spiro Agnew.

There are conflicting reports on whether Agnew will make his usual weekend appearance. There has been no official announcement. The vice president now is in the Far East.

The 43-year-old Palmer hasn't won in more than a year and a half. But he's still one of the leading gallery favorites, scored one of his last triumphs in a playoff here in 1971 and would like nothing better than to solve his putting woes and break the longest victory famine of his career in this tournament.

Casper, one of the game's three $1 million winners, has given indications he's ready to break out of a lengthy slump and has played well his last two times out.

The colorful Sanders challenged for the title a week ago in Hawaii while Trevino, the current British Open champion, always is a threat and usually plays well on desert courses.

Other standouts include Orville Moody, who has finished second two weeks in a row, former Masters champion Jay Brewer, Hawaiian winner John Schlee, defending titleholder Bob Rosburg and the Hill brothers, Dave and Mike.

Among the missing are Australian Bruce Crampton, a two-time winner this year, Tom Weiskopf, Chi Chi Rodriguez and big George Archer.

The format has the pros playing one round on each of four courses—Bermuda Dunes, Temarisk, Indian Wells and LaQuinta—with three different amateur partners each day. The field will be cut to the low 70 pros for Sunday's final round at Bermuda Dunes.

Portions of the last two rounds will be telecast nationally by NBC-TV.

FOOTBALL TRIO PICKED

...Schmidt, Berry, Parker Join 'Hall' Resign Post

"I'm elated. It's the highest possible honor," said Joe Schmidt.

"This is just tremendous. I'm humbled," said Raymond Berry.

"I'm pleased the voters remembered my name. Now my career is complete," said Jim Parker.

These men, all fortifyish, rejoiced Tuesday in Michigan, Arkansas and Maryland. They had just been selected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame and the pride was obvious.

Parker, at 275 pounds, performed brilliantly in the offensive line at Baltimore during a dominant decade for the National Football League before retiring in 1967.

While Parker moved opponents out of the way, the nimble Berry was catching passes from John Unitas . . . 631 in all, an NFL record until Don Maynard of the New York Jets broke it last season.

Ray Berry

Schmidt captained the Detroit Lions' defense for nine seasons after knee trouble caused him to switch from fullback after a fine career at the University of Pittsburgh.

Schmidt later became coach at Detroit and, only four weeks ago, became dissatisfied with the Lions' progress and resigned. He was replaced by former Baltimore coach Don McCafferty.

Berry, by coincidence, was the first assistant coach hired by McCafferty at Detroit. The former Southern Methodist great had been an aide to Frank Eroyles at the University of Arkansas.

Parker now heads his own

packaging company in Baltimore. He was named college football's premier lineman at Ohio State in 1956.

The three men will be inducted July 28 at the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio. Parker hopes to be introduced by his controversial former college coach, Woody Hayes.

"He was like a father to me," Parker said. "I lived at Woody's house the summer before my freshman year. He has always been in my corner."

Hayes said something that stuck with the giant guard: "Never walk off a football field unless you are a better player than you were the day before."

Berry, with the utmost in modesty, paid tribute to Unitas. "Consider the guy I had throwing to me," he said. "That was not a bad arrangement for me, now was it?"

Schmidt called being named to the Hall, "the highest honor in professional football. This is end of the line as far as football achievements are concerned."

His coaching days soured at Detroit and Schmidt quit with the belief that "the only good positions in pro football are player and owner, nothing in between."

OU Aide Asked To Resign Post

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—An assistant football coach at the University of Oklahoma was asked to resign last month because he may have violated the policy against associating with known gamblers, the university president said Tuesday.

The university policy prohibits "coaches or members of our athletic teams from associating in any way with known gamblers, Dr. Paul W. Sharp said. "Last month we became aware of the fact that one of our coaches, Joe Granato, may have violated this policy."

The university president did not elaborate on how Granato may have violated the policy.

Sharp said that at his instructions, Chuck Fairbanks, who at that time was head coach, "discussed this with him (Granato) and, at the conclusion of the conversation, asked for his resignation, effective Jan. 20, which was the date of the meeting."

Sharp also said that Granato and another assistant coach, Gene Hochevar, were subpoenaed before a federal grand jury meeting in Texas. Sharp said that grand jury "apparently is also investigating this matter."

Granato said the request for his resignation came because of an acquaintance.

He recalled being contacted by Fairbanks while in El Paso, Tex. Granato said, "He didn't say much to me. He asked me if it was true that I knew this man, and I said it was."

"Our investigation indicates that coach Hochevar was not involved in any improper behavior," Sharp said. "We are confident that . . . no other University of Oklahoma coaches were involved."

"We have also discussed this matter with Barry Switzer prior to his selection as head coach, and we have his assurance this is true."

Sharp said that because of their responsibility and their contact with "the young people participating in our athletic program, we demand that our coaches maintain moral and ethical standards above those required of the average citizen. "To help them live within these rules, we conduct an extensive education program with the cooperation of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which includes all of the people associated with our athletic programs. Therefore, we do not permit exceptions from their standards."

Granato came to Oklahoma on Jan. 2, 1971, from West Texas State where he was defensive line coach. His major responsibility here was scouting.

In the high school ranks he coached at Silverton, Tex.; Spur, Tex.; Spearman, Tex.; Elk City, Okla.; and Amarillo, Tex.

—CHIEFTAINS POSSESS 13-1 RECORD— Defensive Emphasis Boosts Yutan In Class D Rankings

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

Having coached for seven years in Omaha's Metropolitan Conference, Bill Davis kept hearing the same word—defense.

"I found out you must play it to win," says Davis, who stepped down from the large school ranks two years ago to coach at Class D Yutan.

"When you're around people like Tom Brosnahan of Creighton Prep, Phil Gredoville of Ryan and Tom Hall of Westside, you can't help but be indoctrinated with defense," says Davis.

"I see them all the time," adds Davis, who still lives in West Omaha after spending five years as head basketball coach at Council Bluffs (Ia.) Thomas Jefferson.

The constant emphasis on defense has helped Yutan to a 13-1 record and the No. 2 rating behind unbeaten Hampton in the Sunday Journal and Star's Class D top 10.

"Defense has carried us all season because we haven't shot very well," points out Davis. His Chieftains are shooting only 40 per cent from the field.

At the same time, however, aggressive defense has held Yutan's 14 opponents to an average of less than 48 points a game.

"Defense can go a long way, especially in Class D," allows Davis, "because I don't think Class D teams face a real good defense very often. When they do, it throws 'em off the tempo they're used to."

Nebraska Prep Ratings

By Randy York

Class D

- 1—Hampton (16-0)
- 2—Yutan (13-1)
- 3—Palmer (14-2)
- 4—Sidney St. Pat's (15-1)
- 5—Loomis (11-2)

- 6—Pleasanton (13-2)
- 7—Elmwood (16-3)
- 8—Bartlett (16-1)
- 9—Lexington St. Ann (13-2)
- 10—Bartley (14-2)

Comment — Falls City Sacred Heart, No. 5 last week, dropped from top 10 after 10-point loss to Louisville Loomis is a ratings newcomer after defeating Pleasanton, 70-68. Only two Loomis losses have been by five points in season opener to Overton and by one point at highly-regarded Class C Elm Creek. Butte also dropped out of top 10 after 10-point loss to Spencer. Elmwood used Galaxy Conference title to regain ratings at No. 7 spot. Elmwood also owns MUDCAS title.

That, apparently, has been especially true for Yutan. "We like to think our aggressive defense throws our opponents off," says Davis, who points out that Yutan has forced its foes into an astronomical average of 23 turnovers per game.

How does Davis, a former four-year starter for Dana College in Blair, preach defense?

"We overplay everywhere," he says. "We front the post men. We overplay the forwards and we pressure the guards. It's paying off."

"We work hard on it every night in practice," he adds. "We'll work on defense anywhere from half an hour to an hour. And we also work defense into all of our offensive drills, so we're usually spending an hour and a half on it a night."

Yutan, which has averaged only 58 points a game, showed its defensive muscle last week in the East Central Nebraska Conference Tournament at Wahoo.

The Chieftains clipped Prague, 65-43, in the first round before outmuscled Murdock, 47-37, in the semifinals and stifling Cedar Bluffs, 43-23, in the finals.

"I don't know what the problem is offensively," says Davis, "because we're not holding the ball. We're trying to score. We're just not doing it. That's why defense is so important."

Yutan, which finished third in last year's Journal and Star Class D top 10, severely misses the scoring punch provided by 1972 all-star Rick Heldt, who was graduated.

Committee Advances 'Racing Bill'

By Associated Press

The tax on pari-mutuel horse race bets in Nebraska would be increased from four per cent to five per cent under a bill sent to the floor on a 6-2 vote of the Legislature's Revenue Committee Tuesday.

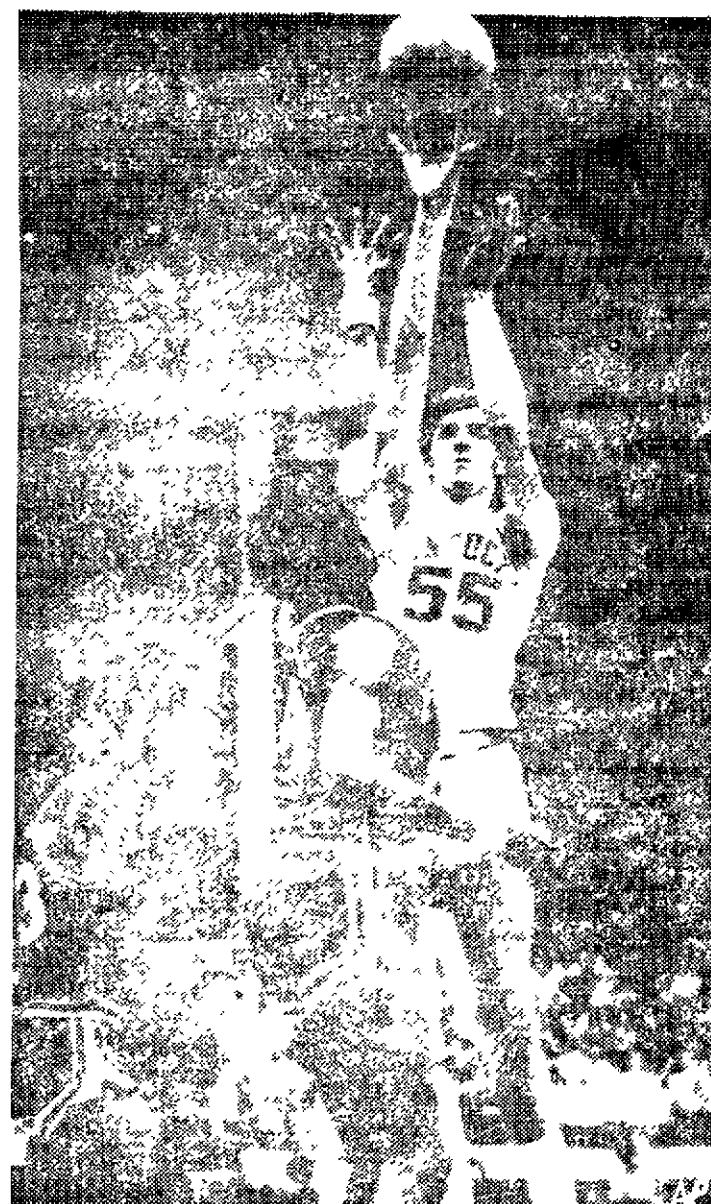

The measure, Bellwood Sen. Loran Schmitt's LB76, had received no opposition at a public hearing Monday. Even the race tracks, which traditionally have opposed any tax increase, favored the bill.

The Revenue Committee attached the emergency clause to the bill, which would make it effective — if enacted — the moment it's signed by the Governor. Speedy action would make the bill effective during the 1973 racing season.

The tax, applied to the portion of the betting handle which exceeds $1 million during any race meeting, returned some $3 million to the state last year.

Yanks Sign Nettles

New York UP —The New York Yankees signed their first three players for the 1973 season Tuesday, including third baseman Graig Nettles, who was acquired from the Cleveland Indians during the off season.

Legislators Cite UCLA's Record

Sacramento, Calif. (AP)—The UCLA Bruins basketball team and Coach John Wooden won a legislative commendation Tuesday.

The state Senate gave 22-0 approval to a resolution which cited "their historic collegiate basketball record."

Sen. Ralph C. Bills, D-Gardena, who introduced the measure, noted the Bruins have 62 consecutive victories. The previous record was 60 by the University of San Francisco.

Bills won unanimous consent to have his son listed as a co-author of the resolution, which was sent to the Assembly for vote.

Prep Player Citation To Elmwood's Lannin

... SENIOR PACES PIRATES TO TOURNAMENT TITLE

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

Elmwood senior Dave Lannin is the type of basketball player who competes well under any circumstances.

But, according to his coach, Lannin was at his career best last week as injury-plagued Elmwood won the Galaxy Conference Tournament championship at Weeping Water.

"He had to be at his best," said Elmwood coach Jay Wischmeier. "With two starters out of the lineup and a third one hurt, he had to come through more than ever."

Lannin, the quarterback on Elmwood's Class D-rated football team last fall, responded in championship fashion. The 63 forward scored 69 points and collected 29 rebounds in three tournament games.

The effort earns him this week's Sunday Journal and Star prep basketball Player of the Week award.

"Doug Powers, our center, missed two games," related Wischmeier, "and two of our other starters (Steve Backmeyer and Jim McLaughlin) had ankle injuries."

Dave Lannin
Elmwood Standout

Lannin's 31 points were crucial in the opening 69-60 tournament win over Weeping Water. Backmeyer played only two minutes of the contest and McLaughlin suffered an off-key three-rebound, four-point performance.

"Dave is in this third year of starting for us," Wischmeier said of Lannin, "and this year he's turned into a real leader. Last year, we really didn't develop a leader with only one senior on the team."

"But," added Wischmeier, "our kids realize this is their last chance and they think they can do something. You can't talk them out of it."

Elmwood, 16-3 and rated seventh in the Sunday Journal and Star Class D top 10, has won three tournament titles this season—its own holiday event, the coveted MUDECAS and the Galaxy.

Lannin has been the key performer in all three with his 18.4 season scoring average. Other players who will receive Player of the Week cards include:

Paul Fox, Beatrice — His two free throws with 33 seconds left in overtime, gave Elmwood the victory over Class A Oremington. Fox also contributed to the win with a steal and a layup.

Jeff Schultz, Centennial — Hit four free throws, a basket and had a steal in crucial final minutes of conference game, 67-64 victory over Columbus Lakeview.

Steve Sielert, Henderson — Scored 30, 18, 24 and 22 points in Class C team's last five games played in a variety of shots to help Elmwood win its first round game, 53-49, over North Dakota State.

Steve Vandervelde, Chester-Hubbart — Six-one forward scored 29 points on a variety of shots to help Chester-Hubbart upset Byron, 63-59.

Dave Scheel, Wakefield — Six-four senior captain hit 44 points and grabbed 43 rebounds to lead unseeded team to 58-53 win over Elk River Valley, 70-40 victory over Lindsay Holy Family and 65-54 win over Norfolk Catholic in the 1973 Invitational. Through five games, including the tournament, he converted 27 consecutive free throws.

Steve McKinnon, Lincoln Southeast — Scored 27 points and collected 28 rebounds in seventh-ranked Knights' weekend wins over Lincoln High and Omaha Burke.

Blake Butler, Minden — Six-nine senior scored 18 points and grabbed 44 rebounds to lead unseeded team to 58-53 win over Elk River Valley, 70-40 victory over Lindsay Holy Family and 65-54 win over Norfolk Catholic in the 1973 Invitational. 'Roving' New York Giants Seek Temporary Home In Yale Bowl

New York (AP) — They'll still be the New York Giants even when they move to New Jersey in 1975. But, in the meantime, they just might settle to be the New Haven Giants.

Yankee Stadium, the Giants' longtime home, begins undergoing a $27 million facelift in October after the New York Yankees complete their baseball season.

It won't be completed until '75.

Although the Yankees have been welcomed to Shea Stadium—home of the baseball Mets and football Jets—for the summers of 1974-75, the Giants were refused.

The New Jersey meadowlands, where the Giants' new 75,000-seat home will be erected, is still a mushpot and the inaugural kickoff is more than two years away.

So, for the autumn of 1973-74 the Giants must find a swatch of turf ringed by enough seats to pacify 63,000 season ticketholders before the promised land is ready in Jersey.

They talked of Palmer Stadium at Princeton University or the field at Rutgers, either of which would enrich the rapport of the Giants with their new neighbors across the Hudson River.

That leaves Yale Bowl, a proud Ivy League oval with a 70,000 capacity located in

New Haven, Conn., 75 miles northeast of Yankee Stadium via the Merritt Parkway or I-95.

Wellington Mara, owner of the Giants, plans to make formal application to Yale University this week to rent the bowl for 12 NFL Sundays.

Before workman begin ripping up Yankee Stadium, the Giants can squeeze in one pre-season and two regular season games next September. Then, it's pack the bags and hit the road.

The Giants had held hope that the City of New York would be influenced by $400,000 in annual revenue at Yankee Stadium and allow them to complete the 1973 season

But, it was nothing doing and the Giants play their final game in the Bronx Sept. 23 and, the Yale University officials willing, will head up the road to Connecticut.

Yale won't commit itself on the matter until the Giants make a formal request. If the Elis say no, Mara's gypsies have a big problem.

Princeton has only 45,000 seats. That leaves 18,000 season ticket people seatless. With a 75,000-seat arena coming, Mara doesn't want to make 18,000 enemies.

Yale, thus, is the only solution.

Community resistance could become a problem in New Haven. For one thing, a Yale Giant agreement would create 12 Sundays of miserable traffic in New Haven as fans thunder up from New York and Jersey.

University athletic officials, while pleased at possibly more than $1 million in revenue from rental of Yale Bowl, must consider the lasting effect on college football.

Will New Haven's two years in the NFL spoil the future for the Eli of the Ivy League? Can local fans be happy watching running backs like Dick Jauron after being exposed to a pro with the talent of Ron Johnson?

If the Giants weren't skipping out on New York City in 1975, their chances would be stronger of sharing Shea Stadium with the Jets. Shea is controlled by the Mets and the baseball club's president,

M. Donald Grant, wants nothing to do with the fleeing Giants.

The Shea Stadium plan has been abandoned.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Tuesday that the Giants must firm up their 1973 stadium plans by Feb. 28 so pro football schedule-makers can do their thing.

—DAYTONA 500 ON FEB. 18—

Allison, Pearson, Petty Set For New Daytona Campaign

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Bobby Allison, David Pearson and Richard Petty, a combined $689,620 richer than they were at this time last year, went back to work on a new driving season at Daytona Beach Tuesday.

These three giants of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing were among a dozen drivers who took advantage of the first practice session for cars entered in the Feb. 18 Daytona 500 — at $200,000 the richest event on the circuit.

The slightly greying veteran stroked his Wood Brothers Mercury around the high banked 2.5-mile Daytona International Speedway at 181.649 miles per hour.

Allison, whose $284,467 in prize money led the circuit in 1972, put some miles on a new Chevrolet he brought from his shops at Hueytown, Ala. His best unofficial lap was 180.834 miles per hour.

"That's pretty good for a car that has never seen asphalt before," a grinning Allison quipped.

Petty toiled around at a lesser rate, shaking down a new Dodge with which he will try to capture a fifth driving title and improve on the $265,460 he won last year.

The day's top speedster, however, was tall, strong Buddy Baker, who as a 10-year regular and a test driver of note probably has put more Daytona miles under his seat belt than any other stock car pilot.

Baker's Dodge, an orange-red car built by veteran chief mechanic Harry Hyde, was clocked at a sizzling 183.982 miles per hour only minutes after he got on the speedway.

If Baker can improve somewhat on that speed, he'll have at least an even chance of winning the pole position for the big race.

The two front row starters will be determined in first qualifying runs Saturday. The pole winner picks up $5,000 and, along with his front row mate, is the only other driver assured of a starting berth in the 15th annual classic.

The remainder of the 40 car field will be selected from two 125-mile races Feb. 15, with the order of finish in those $15,000 events determining a drivers starting position in the big one.

Other NASCAR regulars who got in some practice drives included Bobby Isaac, winner of the 1971 Daytona 500, in a Ford; Cecil Gordon, a veteran who has a new Chevrolet; Cale Yarborough, the 1969 Daytona champ who took over Allison's spot in the Junior Johnson Chevy, and Benny Parsons, a crack driver who also has joined the Chevy ranks for the 1973 season.

Also among Tuesday's arrivals were late model cars entered in Saturday's Royal Triton 300 for drivers of the midwest-based Auto Racing Club of America. Ron Hutchinson of Keokuk, Iowa, a favorite to win the event, was the only ARCA driver to get on the track.

Full practice sessions are scheduled daily through Saturday morning.

Chaps To Move To Jersey City

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A New Jersey corporation Tuesday acquired the Dallas Chaparrals American Basketball Association franchise and will move the team to Jersey City, N.J.

ABA Commissioner Robert Carlson made the announcement following a day-long business session of the league's trustees here.

The trustees met here Monday and Tuesday in connection with the ABA All-Star game scheduled for Tuesday night at the Salt Palace.

Carlson said the Chaps are being bought by New Jersey Meadowland Professional Sports, Inc., with the agreement going into effect three days after the end of Dallas' 1972-73 season.

The commissioner said the club, as yet unnamed, will play its home games in the Jersey City Armory. The facility has a capacity of 6,500, but Carlson said seating can be expanded to 10,000.

Principal stockholders in the sports company, said Carlson, are Cal Transystem, Inc.; Walter Reade Organization, Inc.; and three private investors identified as Preston Long, Dr. Paul Cavelli and Nelson Gross, all of New Jersey.

Carlson told a news conference the new franchise would result in a new divisional alignment, but he added that no changes would be made until future expansion plans are decided.

He said he expected "a certain amount of flak" between the new franchise and its possible conflict with the New York Nets of the ABA. The Nets play out of Uniondale, N.Y.

"The ABA will not stand idly by and wither on the vine," Carlson said, "while the National Basketball Association drags its feet on a merger proposal for the two leagues."

He added that the Dallas transaction took the entire afternoon session of the trustees meeting and no further discussions were held on the merger to be introduced into Congress Thursday.

Meyer, Bennett To Join Rams

Los Angeles (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams' head coach, Chuck Knox, hired two former colleagues Tuesday from Wake Forest University and the Detroit Lions to work as his assistants.

Former New York Jet assistant Ken Meyer, and former Lion assistant Leeman Bennett, were the latest of several staff choices by the new Ram headman.

Knox has not yet filled the positions of offensive and defensive line coaches nor the defensive secondary slot.

Meyer, 47, who coached with Knox at Wake Forest in 1959, has worked with such quarterbacks as John Brodie and Joe Namath.

The Ram coach described Bennett as a "bright, young coach who at 34 has gained considerable coaching experience at four different universities as well as two pro teams."

Bennett served last as assistant coach with the Lions in 1972.

Meyer signed on as Rams offensive coordinator while Bennett was named the receiver coach.

Wylie Top Pick For Academic All-American

East Lansing, Mich. (UPI) — Joe Wylie of Oklahoma was the top vote getter among the 189 collegiate football players nominated to the 21st annual University Academic All-American team which was announced Tuesday.

To be nominated, a student-athlete must achieve at least a B average and first team status in football.

Others who made the team from the Big Eight included Oklahoma State's Tom Wolf at offensive tackle, and Greg Hill of Missouri as the team's kicking specialist.

Texas placed three gridirons on the all-star unit, while Notre Dame and Air Force had two each.

Louisville Hires Aides

Louisville, Ky. (AP) — Louisville head football coach T. W. Alley named Jim Kennedy, coach at Louisville Trinity High School, as offensive backfield coach and Jim Finley of Middle Tennessee State University as quarterback and receiver coach.

Nixon Pledges U.S. To Mideast Peace

Washington (AP) President Nixon promised King Hussein Tuesday night that the United States will continue to work for peace in the Middle East.

Lifting a toast to the Arab monarch at a White House state dinner, Nixon hailed Hussein as a leader who "has sought that peace and courage against extremist elements."

"A time when it appeared extremism was a way to popularity," Nixon said, "he stood for moderation and responsibility."

Nixon said his toast was dedicated "to his hope and our hope to a real peace in the Middle East."

"He is working for it and we are working for it," he said.

Hussein, in turn, voiced high praise of Nixon and said, "We will do our utmost in our part of the world to present future generations with something that is worthwhile."

Using words that Nixon himself had employed in describing Vietnam peace hopes in past months, Hussein said he seeks a future of "peace and honor... a lasting peace."

"This is your dream that you are turning into reality," the monarch told Nixon. "This is our dream... in our part of the world."

Earlier, Nixon and Hussein met privately and the President was said to have assured the monarch of U.S. interest "in progress toward a negotiated peace in the Middle East."

Egypt's Sadat Says War Is Inevitable

By United Press International

The leaders of Egypt, Syria and Libya Tuesday held a new round of talks on the Middle East crisis in Cairo Tuesday, and a Libyan news report quoted Egyptian President Anwar Sadat as saying another war against Israel was inevitable.

King Hussein was in Washington for talks with President Nixon and top administration officials.

In Jerusalem, Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir said Israel purchased $500 million worth of weapons from the U.S. last year, including Phantom and Skyhawk warplanes.

Sapir told a group of American Jews that Israel would have to seek new sources of income to cope with the continuing defense costs. He said Israel will be receiving more Phantoms and hoped the U.S. supply line will continue to be open for the next 10 years, even if peace comes to the Middle East.

The meetings in Cairo of the presidential council of the Federation of Arab Republics, which groups Egypt, Syria and Libya, began Monday. The three heads of state, Sadat, President Hafez Assad of Syria and Col. Muammar Khadafi of Libya, held two lengthy meetings Tuesday, political sources said.

The official Libyan news agency quoted Sadat as saying at the Tuesday morning meeting that "plans for solving the problem of the occupation of Palestine peacefully have failed, and the only alternative available to us is a military solution."

The talks of the three leaders Monday concentrated on the military and political situation in the federation, the sources said.

Diplomatic sources in Cairo, meanwhile, said Sadat had dispatched Hafez Ismail, his adviser on national security, to Moscow for talks with Soviet leaders in anticipation of a new peace initiative by the U.S. The sources said the Russians had made clear they are ready to back whatever position Cairo takes in regard to a peaceful settlement.

Uganda Is Criticized For Expelling Asians

United Nations (UPI) — Two international organizations criticized the African nation of Uganda Tuesday for its expulsion of tens of thousands of Asians.

The International League for the Rights of Man compared the expulsion of the Asians with the racial segregation policy of South Africa known as apartheid.

In Geneva, the International Commission of Jurists charged that Uganda has become a lawless state and that the expulsion of Asians served to cover up the mass murder of Africans.

In a letter of protest to Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, the league accused the Ugandan government of "serious violations of human rights" against its citizens, "Both black and Asian."

The expulsion of Asians from Uganda, the league said, was "an event which we consider to be among the most inhumane and deplorable of the past quarter century."

Aside from expelling non-citizen Asians, the Ugandan Asians who were citizens, "as well as indigenous black who do not agree with the policies of the present regime," the league said.

The letter was signed by Jerome J. Shestack, chairman of the league.

White House Advice Given Seamans Before Management Analyst Fired

©The New York Times

Washington — Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans Jr. said Tuesday that he had received "some advice" from the White House before terminating the employment of A. Ernest Fitzgerald, a management analyst, three years ago.

Seamans would not go beyond that statement, however, on grounds of "privilege" and "executive privilege" in refusing to discuss communications with the White House.

He testified before Herman D. Staiman, chief of the appeals examining office of the Civil Service Commission, in a hearing requested by Fitzgerald to regain his former job with the Air Force.

Cost Overrun
Fitzgerald had testified before Congress on cost overruns in the C-5A transport plane development program in shortly after he had received his career Civil Service appointment with the government.

The Air Force claims that a "computer error" had mistakenly notified him of his career status, that his job was completed with the Air Force and that his job was terminated in an economy move in 1969.

Fitzgerald contends that he was dismissed as punishment for revealing to Congress a $2.1 billion cost overrun on the controversial aircraft project.

Seamans, completing his third day of testimony over a two-week period, spent the day in the witness chair.

He said he had been displeased with Fitzgerald's work and conceded that he had so testified before the House Armed Services Committee.

Can't Remember
However, when asked whether he had communicated any such feeling to the deputy who had drawn up a list of persons to be laid off in an economy move, the secretary first said no and then said that he could not remember.

John Bodner, Jr., a lawyer for Fitzgerald, hammered away at any possible connection with the Nixon administration on Fitzgerald's dismissal.

Bodner cited President Nixon's statement at last week's news conference that "I was totally aware that Mr. Fitzgerald would be fired or discharged or asked to resign. I approved it. Mr. Seamans must have been talking to someone who had discussed the matter with me. No, this was not a case of some person down the line deciding he should go. It was a decision that was submitted to me. I made it and I stick by it."

Denial Next Day
The next day White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler retracted the President's statement.

Seamans' attorney, L.T. Col. C. Claude Teagarden, used a transcript of the White House retraction to meet Tuesday's questions.

But Bodner went line-by-line through the brief presidential statement and Seamans repeatedly conceded that Nixon had been in error.

Seamans strayed only once beyond his claims of privilege in internal communications with the White House to concede that he had had "some advice from the White House" on the termination of Fitzgerald. "But I won't characterize it," he added.

Fire Set In Mount Of Olives Mission; Damage Is Heavy

Jerusalem (AP) — A group of arsonists set fire Tuesday to an American mission on the biblical Mount of Olives, causing heavy damage to ancient manuscripts and books, police reported.

A police spokesman said officials suspected members of the militant Jewish Defense League (JDL) were involved. The JDL has demonstrated against missionary activity in the Holy Land and has threatened foreign religious groups.

The police spokesman said five to seven men entered the center for Holy Scriptures, poured kerosene over the floors and book-lined walls and started the fire.

Dragnet On For Colorado Killer

Pueblo, Colo. (AP) — Police report a statewide search is under way for a man sought for questioning in the shooting death of Leroy Romero, 31, of Pueblo.

Police did not identify the suspect.

Romero's body was found Sunday near an abandoned house in rural Pueblo County. The county coroner's office said he died of a gunshot wound in the chest, apparently Friday night.

Market Prices Higher

New York (AP) — The stock market inched slightly higher Tuesday in an uncertain market that seemed to be on the edge of a crash.

The pressure on the dollar in West Germany and the concern over inflation, economic Phase 3, and increased interest rates caused investors to continue their lack of confidence, analysts said.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industries closed at 979.91, up 151. Declining issues edged out advancing issues on the New York Stock Exchange 750 to 618. The Dow Jones average was down 0.06 at 10:30 but rallied up to plus 2.49 by noon, then slid backward for an upward change of 1.06 points, and closed plus 1.51.

Analysts said the fundamentals of the market were still good, but investor confidence, once shaken, is not easily restored.

Eastern Air Lines was the most-active on the Big Board, down 1/8 to 15 1/2, followed by Household Finance Corp., down 1/4 to 27, and Hoffman Electronics, down 1/4 to 13 1/2.

Precious-metal mining stocks showed gains, with the American Stock Exchange index up 1/2 at 61.80. The Dow Jones average was up 1/2 at 10:30 but rallied up to plus 2.49 by noon, then slid backward for an upward change of 1.06 points, and closed plus 1.51.

The American Stock Exchange's price-earnings ratio was the most active on the Amex down 1/4 to 19.9, followed by Reserve Bank of America, down 1/4 to 10 1/2, and Eckman Corp., up 1/4 to 2 1/2.

In Over-the-Counter trading the NASDAQ composite index was up 0.27 to 127.7.

Soybeans Post Limit Advances

Chicago (AP) — Limit advances were posted again in soybeans and soybean meal futures on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday, but heavy selling late in the session sent wheat futures downward the limit.

In the soybean pit, the gain was 10 cents a bushel and $5 in meal, both for the fourth straight session and now totaling six limit gains in eight days.

The loss in wheat also amounted to 10 cents a bushel only in the May contract.

Soybean oil, up some 50 points early in the session, fell back heavily and closed with a loss of some 10 points after being 30 points lower. Corn closed some 4 1/2 cents lower, while oats were mixed.

Chicago (AP) — Soybeans were 5 1/2 to 10 cents higher, March 5 1/2, March 2 1/2, March 1 1/2, and March 1/2, and oats were 1 1/2, March 1 1/2, and March 1/2.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
